Board Makes It Plain Campaign Will Continue

By R. O. MARRION

Ratepayers of Greater Victoria school district voted in favor of a five-year, $5,600,000 school construction program, but not strongly enough to pass it.

To pass, the by-law required a 60 per cent affirmative vote. As the Saanich vote total mounted last night, the figure wavered around 56 per cent.

But school board officials, "naturally very disappointed," made one thing clear: the ratepayers will be asked to vote again on the question.

School Board Chairman Humphrey Golby and Trustee Richard Reeve, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, both said the building program will be resubmitted at the earliest opportunity.

SHIFTS AGAIN

And both said the rejection of the by-law will mean early re-institution of the shift system in Greater Victoria schools.

Victoria city voted only 52.8 per cent in favor of the construction program. Esquimalt voted 64.4 per cent in favor, according to preliminary figures. Oak Bay voted 60.7 per cent in favor, and View Royal's 105 votes were 77.1 per cent in favor.

But the mounting totals in Saanich were only about 50 per cent in favor of the program, and did nothing to bring the over-all percentage up to the necessary figure.

"The referendum having apparently failed, we will re-present the by-law to the people at the earliest possible opportunity," said Mr. Golby.

'ALREADY HERE'

"Our feeling is this: that we thought we had made abundantly clear we were only asking permission to build classrooms for pupils already here.

"If the failure to pass the referendum was due to the fact that people were critical of the school program—if it's items in the curriculum they don't like, that is something else again, and we had better find out what they don't like. But schoolrooms we don't have.

"If we lose a year now, it looks as if we'll be on the shift system for the next five or six years—very definitely at the secondary school level."

For Saanich, the fastest-growing municipality in B.C., to vote 50-50 "with its population and crying need for schools—I can't understand it!" Mr. Golby said.

Mr. Reeve expressed his appreciation to the voters who did turn out and vote for the school by-law.

But, he said, "we have appealed to the adults."

SMALL CHARGE

"Perhaps we will have to appeal to the children, who surely can't feel too happy about their position if they know that their parents, by voting no or equally strongly voting no by staying away, have rejected a charge for much needed school accommodation that would be no greater than the charge for the electricity their refrigerators or TV sets would use."

Mr. Reeve predicted that the shift system, only recently dropped, would be reinstituted next September.

Parent-Teacher Associations and school board officials had worked hard in recent weeks seeking support of the by-law, and little, if any, opposition had been expressed publicly. In private conversations, however, some municipal officials had expressed the view that the school board was asking for too much borrowing authority at one time for taxpayers—especially nervous taxpayers of Saanich—to swallow.

The by-law would have permitted the borrowing of the estimated cost of providing 42 more classrooms at the elementary school level and 80 "teaching areas," mainly classrooms, at the secondary or junior and senior high school, levels.

ANOTHER 4,000

The classrooms are needed, the school board says, for an estimated increase of approximately 4,000 pupils in the school district in the next five years.

First projects to be undertaken in the building program were expected to be new classroom wings at Oak Bay, S. J. Willis and Lansdowne Junior High Schools, each costing slightly more than $200,000.

Austin Tops Poll

Saanich Sends Old Guard Back

By DAVID BROWN

Saanich voters yesterday showed reluctance to unseat incumbents of the "old" council, and instead solidly backed not only the three sitting members but also a former "old" councillor.

But only Coun. George Austin was given a decisive victory enabling him to carry on as council patriarch, with 20 years of council service behind him.

Bunched ni the second, third and fourth spots in the three-seat fight were Coun. Eugene Diespecker, Coun. Ainslie Worthington and ex-councillor S. W. Brock with an unprecedented three votes separating them.

A recount will be made by municipal officials Monday to determine who will hold the second and third seats for two-year terms.

Coun. Austin spearheaded the "old guard's" endorsement by voters, winning every polling place except Marigold. Soon after the first votes were in it was apparent that it would be a four-way race.

Most of the other nine candidates ran well behind.

The vote was believed to be one of the lightest ever for an off-year or non-reeveship election. Municipal clerk Gordon Hayward estimated about a 30 per cent turnout, or "about average" for this type of election.

Rebuffed in the light vote in his bid to replace the incumbents, Reeve Arthur Ash struck

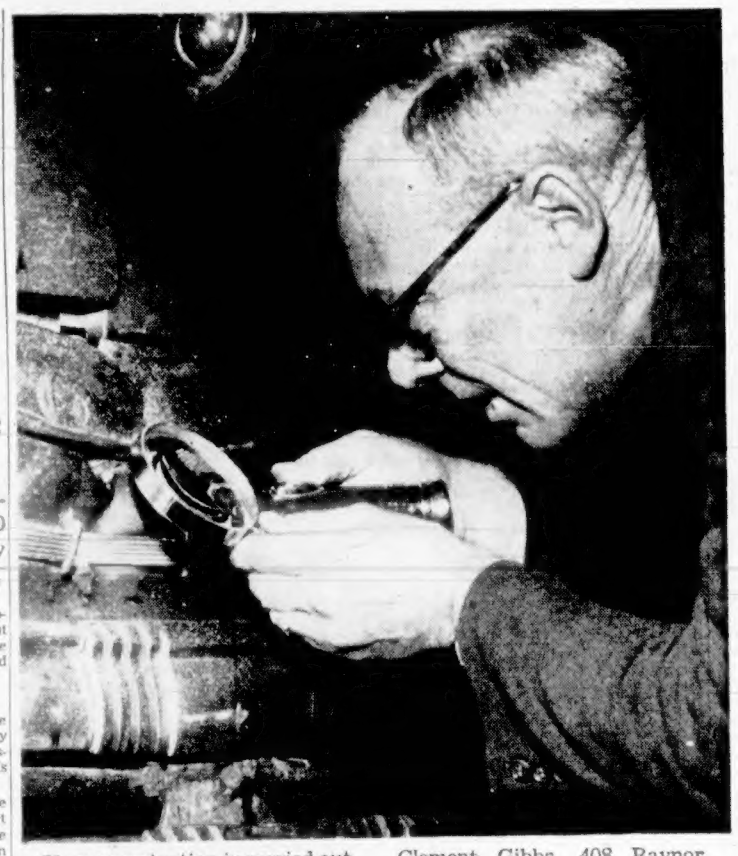
KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Prime Minister H. S. Suhrawardy's foreign policy which leans towards the West, won strong support at the polls yesterday.



Close examination is carried out on truck in connection with the hit-and-run death of pedestrian Clement Gibbs, 408 Raynor. Detective David Donaldson checks the vehicle.

Fatality Toll: 20

Elderly Victim Dies After Hit-Run Crash

An elderly man died last night, four hours after being hurled across the intersection of Craigflower and Raynor by a hit-and-run car.

Clement Gibbs, 408 Raynor, between 70 and 80 years of age, suffered broken legs, cuts and shock.

City police immediately touched off an exhaustive hunt for the hit-and-run driver.

Investigating officers believe the vehicle involved was a truck.

Later in the evening a damaged truck was located in Esquimalt. Police questioned the driver and the investigation was continuing at press time.

A number of vehicles also were checked in the Greater Victoria area last night.

Any ye-witnesses to the accident, which occurred at 5.55 p.m., are urged by police to get in touch with the city traffic division.

Persons arriving at the scene after the accident said the elderly man was carried a considerable distance by the vehicle.

Traffic fatalities in the Greater Victoria area this year now total 20.

Bitter

Fails Pill Test

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Bobby Hale sat down for his final first quarter examination at Vanderbilt University Friday with confidence.

In one pocket were two "stay-awake" pills to make up for 24 hours of cramming. In the other were two sleeping pills to insure a blissful trip home to Wilmington, Del., after the exam.

Hale popped two pills into his mouth and started writing. Wrong pocket.

He woke up in Vanderbilt Hospital, yesterday, 18 hours later, and tackled the examination again, wide-eyed.

He caught a plane for Wilmington yesterday.

Pedestrian Breaks Leg

A broken leg, cuts and bruises were suffered by Miss Margaret Graham, 65, 4320 Rockland, shortly after 11 last night when she was in collision with a car driven by Arthur R. Proctor, 1275 Tattersall, while crossing Douglas near Broughton, police said.

Eject Israel Hussein Asks

AMMA, Jordan, AP—King Hussein yesterday urged Arab League members states to force Israel to evacuate the Gaza Strip if she refuses to get out.

Police Car Crash

Child, 5, Injured Twice Same Day

Five-year-old Wendy Elliott, 2934 Harriet, was involved in two traffic accidents yesterday afternoon, the second while she was being taken to hospital.

Wendy suffered head and leg injuries on the road outside her home about 1.50 p.m. when she was struck by a car driven by Thomas H. Lidgate, 82 Hampton. Police say she ran into the path of the car.

When she was being taken to St. Joseph's Hospital the police car in which she was riding was in a collision with another car at the corner of Herald and Douglas.

City police said the police car driven by Saanich Constable George Walton, 4060 Quadra, was going towards town on Douglas when it was in collision with one driven by P. J. Migadel, 2754 Asquith, going east on Herald.

It's a Girl! It's a Girl! It's a Girl! Dad Told

Mrs. D. E. Hourigan presented her husband with an early Christmas present in triplicate yesterday afternoon—all girls.

They were the fourth set of triplets to have been born in Victoria. Others were born in March, 1912, August, 1921, and September, 1954. Triplets were also born in Nanaimo in February, 1954.

Mrs. Hourigan, 82 Helmcken Road, and her three new daughters are doing fine. The girls are being kept in an incubator at St. Joseph's Hospital for the time being.

They weigh six pounds four ounces, five pounds 15 ounces and three pounds 15 ounces, and were born between 4.17 and 4.34 p.m.

For the Hourigan family, the triplets were a pleasant surprise. Mr. Hourigan said last night that although he had ideas that it would be a multiple birth, he and his wife were not prepared for triplets.

The three girls bring the Hourigan family to 11, including six other children, three girls and three boys, who are at home with their father. The elder children will be visiting their mother in hospital today.

Mr. Hourigan, a carpet and linoleum contractor, said "We are all quite thrilled and very grateful to Dr. R. B. Robertson."

Odds against triplets are about 10,000 to 1, according to Dr. Robertson.

Bonus for Needy Mounting

Fund Now $5,452, with Two Days to Go

Two days remain before the "500 Christmas Fund" of The Daily Colonist must be closed so that the 500 neediest families in this area may have their Christmas bonus before the holiday.

The fund climbed yesterday to a few dollars short of $5,500, or almost $11 for each family. Donations to increase that total may be mailed to The Daily Colonist or left at this newspaper, its downtown office at 1215 Broad or the office of the police chief's secretary before Tuesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, the 10-member auction staff of Maynard and Sons, 733 Johnson, decided yesterday to donate its time for the toy auction at 7.30 p.m. Wednesday on behalf of the fund.

Gifts of toys from Woodward's, Standard Furniture, Mc and Mc, Hudson's Bay Company and Eaton's has assured a good sale, but more toys can always be sold at these popular auctions. Toys should be taken to Maynard's during business hours tomorrow and Tuesday.

Contributions yesterday included $165.94 collected at the hockey game Friday by Mrs. Lynn Middleton and members of the Gyrettes, Women's Auxiliary to Royal Jubilee Hospital. In this amount was a $20 bill.

Another gift, of $5, was labelled "from the children of University Gardens, proceeds from a fair."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE average middle-class North American family can afford $500 to $1,000 for its annual holiday, a Vancouver tourist official by the name of Tom Cox was quoted as saying.

I must remember to send that man a box of $1 cigars or a case of scotch for Christmas. He has given us lower-class North Americans something to shoot for, and the least we can do is repay him with a little token of appreciation.

In the substandard crowd that I run with, $75 for a holiday is looked upon as reckless extravagance. But this glimpse of the way the middle class lives has fired me with zeal to work my way up to the average, along with Mr. H. R. MacMillan, Aristotle Onassis and the rest of the gang.

The other day Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent announced that the average Canadian family is $700 in debt. He seemed worried, as any kindly, average old uncle would be at the prospect of his hard-luck nephews and nieces going broke and leaving him to hold the bag in election year.

But of course he didn't mean the average MIDDLE-CLASS family, the gold-plated vacation boys that Tom Cox has in mind. Uncle Louis isn't worried about them. Their only problem is to buy a car with enough trunk space to hold their travellers' cheques.

* * *

Even this little irritation has been smoothed out by Detroit's new coffins on wheels, which are so long that an average middle-class family can drive along the holiday trail with the satchels of spending-money following at a respectful distance, about a block behind.

Then all they have to do is plan their journey so that the end of each day's travel brings them to a motel with a good strong vault.

Burglar-proof auto courts are easy to identify. They are marked with five star-rubies.

Greetings

Cards Turn Pink

The craze for pink which has been strong in many items recently has spread into this year's Christmas cards.

Christmas trees on the cards have turned pink along with bells and baubles also decorating the greetings.

Although the designs haven't changed much, the inside has changed very greatly from last year because the buyers no longer care to gush in their greetings. The 10-line verse is almost a thing of the past and the best sellers this year confine greetings to two lines.

Best-selling designs on the market are winter scenes by well-known painters and black and white steel engraving-type pictures of snowy scenes.

About 85 per cent of the cards are bought by women, so the cards are keyed to female tastes. Most male buyers have a difficult time finding cards with simple designs appealing to them.

PEARLS, DIAMONDS

Most people prefer to buy their cards by the box and will pay anywhere from 85 cents a box to $25 for boxes of cards studded with artificial pearls and diamonds.

One of the first Christmas card designs, a portly gentleman smiling at an enormous plum pudding, is still selling strongly.

Some historians trace the origin of the Christmas card custom back to Imperial Rome where New Year's "Stenae"—clay tablets colorfully decorated with greetings — were exchanged.

The modern cards, however, date from the Victorian era in England, when Henry Cole, the founder-director of the Victoria and Albert Museum, commissioned the first one. Designed by John Calcott Horsley, 1,000 cards went on sale in 1846.

Statutory Case Given Remand

Walter Grexton, 5273 Cordova Bay Road, was remanded in Saanich court yesterday to Dec. 20, without plea, on a charge of committing a statutory offence.

Grexton was arrested by Saanich police last Friday for an offence allegedly committed over a long period of time. He was remanded on $5,000 bail.

Garden Notes

Wind-Resistant Shrubs Named

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Shrubs for Narrow Passage—(W. G. K., Victoria). It is difficult to find suitable subjects for planting in the 12-foot passage between two houses. The trouble is not only the lack of sun in such a location, but such narrow passages are usually wind tunnels, with a horrible draft whistling through them all the time.

Some shrubs which would be reasonably resistant to these conditions are: Forsythia spectablis, Viburnum fragrans, Azalea ponetta, Spiraea Henryi, Viburnum Tinus and Cotoneaster Franchetti.

Pruning Butterfly Bush—(C. W., Ladysmith). Buddleia variablia and its named varieties are best cut back to within a few buds of the old wood in February or March each year, but Buddleia globosa and alternifolia, both of which flower in early summer on the growths of the previous year, require little pruning except the shortening of long, straggly shoots after flowering. For specimens which have got out of hand and become overgrown, you'll have to sacrifice a season's flowering and cut back the main branches to within three feet of the ground in early April.

I am sending you a copy of the Colonist Pruning Chart to guide you in the treatment of your other shrubs.

Tigridia Culture—(A. M. M., Victoria). The Tigridia or Mexican Shell Flower is a lovely thing, and as easy to grow as a gladiolus, with very much the same culture. Plant the bulbs in a sunny, south-facing bed of rich, sandy loam, setting them in the ground three inches deep and six inches apart. They can go in as soon as the soil has warmed up in the spring—usually around mid-April. Keep them well watered, with a little soluble fertilizer in the water when the buds are forming. Like the Day Lily, each flower lasts only a single day, but each plant will produce a constant succession of bloom.

The bulbs are not completely hardy, and should be lifted in the fall and stored in dry sand or vermiculite in a cool but frost-proof place for the winter. Given reasonably good growing conditions, you'll harvest at least three bulbs for every one you plant.

Lizards in the Garden—(J. H. Y., Victoria). You would be very foolish to try to rid your garden of lizards, as they are most beneficial. They do no harm at all to your plants, and consume vast quantities of insects and small slugs.

Ice Cream Cartons—(F. H., Victoria). The ice cream cartons you are saving would be excellent for starting your tomato and other plants indoors from seed nest spring. The wax with which the cardboard is impregnated would not be harmful.

You could also save milk cartons cut down to size for this purpose.

Wanda Primrose — (B. E., Duncan)—The little purple primrose "Wanda" makes an exceptionally nice houseplant for indoor flowering, but it must be given a very cool room, for it cannot tolerate an overheated atmosphere. Simply lift a few plants, pot them up, and bring them indoors, watering the pots to settle the soil around the roots and keeping the little plants out of the sun for the first few days.

I should point out that while the flowers are lovely by daylight, they seem to turn a rather muddy color when viewed under artificial light.

Alarm Change Planned

View Royal Fire Brigade To Get New Truck, Hall

VIEW ROYAL.—Fire brigade equipment in View Royal is being increased with the purchase of an $18,000 fire truck and the construction of a new, two-storey fire hall.

The present fire truck will be retained as an auxiliary unit.

Construction of the fire hall has begun near the View Royal Community Hall and is expected to be completed by mid-April, when the new truck is expected to arrive.

Fire Chief A. E. Brasley plans to travel to Toronto to take delivery of the truck and drive it back to View Royal.

Arrangements have been completed to join with Saanich fire hall for the sounding of alarms, instead of phoning local volunteers. Within a few days a new telephone number will be given to View Royal residents in case of fire.

Cards bearing the new number will be sent to all householders.

"Magnifique!" . . . or the Hungarian equivalent . . . is John Piros' reaction to a preliminary sip of the goulash he cooked in three hours.

The old songs of the homeland are sung by a group of Hungarian refugees clustered around pianist Mrs. L. Turje, who came with her husband from Hungary some years ago. Balladeers are, from left, Szabo Imre, John Juhasz, Steve Gomori and Charlie Aradi.—(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)

They couldn't find exactly the bread they were used to, so Norwegian rye bread sliced by Roza Szikszai was taken as the closest thing.

Get-Together Held . . . . . For Hungarians

Hope, Liberty Spice Goulash

By COURTNEY TOWERS

John Piros sipped from a long wooden spoon, gave a discriminating sniff, and decided the steaming pot needed a pinch more paprika and a handful of green peppers.

Much later, with another sip and sniff, he rolled his eyes on high to modestly indicate the Hungarian goulash had acquired the master's touch.

A newspaperman, his "nose for news" twiching at the savory aroma, came closer to sample Piros' pride.

John couldn't speak any English and the reporter was something less than fluent in Hungarian. But they shared a common bond in delight with John's three-hour labor of love.

* * *

The occasion was the first of many planned get-togethers for the Hungarian refugees here in the basement of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Hungarian gypsy music filled the room, several of the refugees and Hungarians who had come here some time ago played table tennis, a popular sport in their country, and others stood around and talked. Also there was Father Michael O'Connor, of the Cathedral staff.

The basement room has been donated for their use every Saturday. Part of the time is given to instruction in English, given by Michael Grant-Peterkin, a teacher at St. Patrick's School and a worker after the war with the UNO Refugee Commission in Austria, Germany, Yugoslavia and Hungary.

The rest of the time is for pleasure, and that largely means food—the food they are used to.

With the goulash cooked by John, 31-year-old expert in French cuisine and diet cookery, who has spent 14 years as a chef, other people sliced rye bread and dill pickles and generous portions of apple pie. One of them was Roza Szikszai, the tiny young bride, married only three weeks ago in a tailor's shop in Vienna.

Only a couple of things marred the repast.

The bread was Norwegian rye bread, "closest to our own we could fine," said Andrew Dery, the man in charge. A young Hungarian, he is an engineer with the provincial public works department. And they forgot to buy coffee . . . not realizing it until they had finished all the apple pie.

There was another thing wrong, too.

The reporter, who was invited to try the goulash, just couldn't wait until everything was ready. But that worked out all right, because Andrew Dery appeared later at the office with a small pot of the delicious stuff.

* * *

We recommend it, so gather 'round, girls, and hear how Piros does it. Quantities shown here are to feed a crew of about 20.

First you get a big pot and plenty of time—three hours. Ingredients are 11 pounds of stewing meat, three ounces of paprika, five pounds of onions, two pounds of pure lard, two pounds of green peppers and an ounce of black pepper.

Also, as the Hungarians say, you really need some wine or something stronger to tone down the effects of the goulash a bit.

Soviets Desert In Thousands

LONDON (AP) — A large-scale revolt of Soviet troops to the side of the freedom fighters in Hungary is reported today by The Observer.

Lajos Lederer, a specialist on behind-the-Iron-Curtain activities for the influential British Sunday newspaper, writes that Red army desertions totalled 15,000—most of them Ukrainians.

"The largest part of them have joined the Hungarian forces in the mountains."

Soviet authorities in Budapest are reported so worried about the desertions that "they have little time for dealing with the Hungarian revolution itself."

In Budapest Hungarian workers maintained their attitude of bitter opposition yesterday, but more men were appearing on the job under the compelling urge of keeping their families in food.

Radio Budapest reported last night the first execution under martial law imposed last Sunday. Janos Soltesz was executed for hiding arms.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Christmas is a creed. It is a creed about God. Christmas says that God is like Jesus Christ, a Personality loving and good, not some strange, mysterious, impersonal "power." Christ revealed God. In Christ we see God. That is what "the Incarnation" means. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

Scholars have said that if they had one question to ask of the Sphinx it would be, "Is the universe kind?" Christmas is the answer. The reality behind the universe is like Jesus Christ. The universe was split in two and its fullest truth revealed.

When you think of God, think of Jesus Christ. "In Him dwelt all the fullness of the Godhead bodily." Speak to Him with confidence. "When ye pray say Father."

Christmas declares that heaven lies so close to earth that messages are sent from God to man. "Emmanuel, God with us"—that is the creed of Christmas. God is with us, is here now. "In Him we live and move and have our being." God cares for man and takes an interest in him.

God must come first. "Glory be to God in the highest" comes before peace on earth and good-will among men. Christmas is the story of what God has done, not what man has achieved. Christmas reveals what God is doing. He works in His world. His power triumphs over the cruelty of a Herod and is stronger than the legions of Rome. Christmas is good news about God.

Man Like Christ

Christmas is a creed about man. Christ revealed man's true nature. Men should be like Christ. "We have been made not only Christians, but Christ," said Augustine. So every man is meant to be a Christ! What else did Paul mean when he prayed that "Christ be formed in you?" What else did John mean when he said to them who receive Him Christ gives "power to become the Sons of God"?

Christmas is a creed about life. "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy." Life is not meant to be sad. Life is built for gladness. Christmas is our natural condition, a time of singing, a happy time, when carols break from cracked lips and unfamiliar smiles come on coarsened cheeks and laughter bubbles up from little children. We turn aside to help the weak and give a lift to the lonely.

It is a generous time when Scrooges are converted, when neighbors are kind, when houses are gay, when candles and carols and Christmas cards carry the Christmas faith:

Love is better than hate.
Light is stronger than darkness.
Kindness is wiser than greed.
Goodness can never be finally defeated.

Our world needs Christmas desperately, for this is a world in which multitudes live in cruel tyranny, a world in which millions are hungry, afraid and desperate. But Christmas carries this creed: "The light shineth in darkness and the darkness comprehended it not," or, as Weymouth puts it, "has not overpowered it," or Moffatt, "did not master it."

Light is victorious over darkness: that's what it means. Down through the centuries comes the conviction that some day men shall be free, some day all men shall be friends. Some day disease, sorrow, death and war shall disappear. Let delight reign in your heart. Lift up your eyes with courage and let God's peace reign within. Love shall live. Hope shall live. Fear and all her dragon brood shall die. It is written in the stars.

Nehru, Eden Hold Talks

LONDON (UP) — India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru left Saturday for talks with President Eisenhower after declaring himself "very contented" with a hurried conference with Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden.

It was expected that the two prime ministers would hold a lengthier meeting when Nehru returns from America, Christmas eve.

To Follow Wage Spiral

Retail Milk Price Boost Certain but Not Imminent

An increase in retail milk prices in the Victoria area is almost certain but "it is not imminent," a spokesman for the Victoria Pasteurized Milk Distributors' Association said last night.

"We have made no move as yet to raise prices," the spokesman said. "What we decide to do will depend on our forthcoming negotiations with the Milk Drivers' and Dairy Employees' Union."

"It would be a miracle if we can escape a price increase if wages go up."

In Vancouver the price of delivered milk will go up two cents a quart Monday, an official of Vancouver's largest distributor has announced.

Lyle Atkinson, manager of Dairyland Division of Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association, also announced that price of wholesale milk to stores will be increased by three cents a quart.

The increase will bring the price of standard milk delivered to the home to 24 cents a quart.

His announcement followed the signing of a new wage agreement between Vancouver dairies and their truck drivers.

The agreement gave the drivers a $15 monthly increase retroactive to March 1 and another $17.50 in the new year.

Victoria milk drivers are expected to seek a similar increase.

Bar Robot Measures Customers

PARIS (Reuters) — French manufacturers Saturday introduced a "robot barman" capable of mixing martinis in proportion to the strength of the drinker.

The robot, which resembles a gasoline pump, contains a built-in photo-electric cell which measures the customer's height, reflexes, and weight before delivering its drink in a glass through a slot.

The robot also serves a variety of drinks, including milk and fruit juice for those who fail to measure up to martini strength.

Strangers Within the Gates

VICTORIA has been a garrison community for upwards of three-quarters of a century. Its citizens have served in three wars and require no introduction to service matters, and their concomitant —camp or barrack living. The sight of a man in the Queen's uniform is ever a welcome one, and with it the knowledge that in this free land there is a friend. For that good reason there will be much interest in the announcement by the Armed Services Leave Centre that numbers of uniformed men whose homes are in other parts of Canada will be in Victoria at Christmas. It is a bleak time to be away from home, even at the call of a nation's duty.

It has been traditional custom for Victorians for many years to open their homes at Christmas to the stranger within the gates. In a growing, congested community there are many such. New Canadians still in their first year in this country, refugees from Europe not yet free from the spell of the desolation they so lately left behind, single men in barracks with leave but nowhere in particular to go—these are some of the strangers within our gates. In singles and in pairs, or in larger groups where that is possible, many of these individuals can be made party to this community's Christmas. And should. Plans are well in hand with regard to the new Canadians, but there is still a gap with regard to men in uniform who will be off duty.

Our hope is that when Christmas Day dawns every opportunity will have been taken to see that there need be no "strangers" within the limits of the community. The Armed Services Leave Centre, at Telephone 2-0771, will put any Victoria home in touch with an off-duty serviceman; but arrangements respecting invitations for Christmas should be made immediately.

Sitting Together

THEORETICALLY it should not matter whereabouts in the Legislature the MLAs sit. Even if they were mixed like liquorice all-sorts it would soon become evident who they were and what was their party. Five minutes debate would soon unscramble their allegiances. Actually it might be intriguing to have the customary seating arrangements altered so that opposites sat together as deskmates. This might curb some of the asperity that takes place; a member could hardly abuse a fellow MLA with quite the same abandon if when he sat down he would be drawn willy-nilly into intimate chat with him. And proximity might tend to dispel party difference.

No doubt at all this is why government and opposition groups sit sharply defined from one another. Members draw strength when bunched together with no leaven to upset their solidarity of thought. Better to have one voice than even be right is a well-established party maxim, as any legislature or parliament makes amply clear. MLAs, therefore, do not seat themselves by accident or rule of thumb. Even when a government group is so large it overflows to the other side of the chamber the overflow sits in a separate protective phalanx.

Seemingly someone has suggested that at the next session all Socred members should sit on one side of the chamber, facing an alignment of 13 opposition members, themselves differentiated in two groups. This would make an imposing show of government strength, it is true, but a needless and a boastful one. So Mr. Speaker Irwin must have thought even while turning down the suggestion as unsymmetrical, which physically it was. Hence 10 Socreds will seat themselves alongside CCF and Liberal members. There is not likely to be any party dilution as a result, however, and at least the even distribution of MLAs will look more pleasing to the eye. In any event they are all supposed to be legislating in one direction —for the good of the province.

Yellow for Safety

DOWN in California they have been doing some intensive experiments with colors to determine which is the most striking, and yellow has come out far ahead of all the others. The tests were done by the U.S. Army, the California Optometric Association and various other organizations with the thoroughness which distinguishes American investigations into whys and wherefores, so that the result may be taken as proof.

This finding should interest traffic safety authorities in Canada, where recently there has been a misguided movement to switch from yellow to red as the uniform color for warning and stop signs. Already several red signs have been put up in and around Victoria reportedly as an experiment, though how any useful findings could be derived from it is not clear.

The tests in California are important also to hunters. Habit and acceptance without much thought of the designation of red as the color for danger can be the only reason for clinging to red hats and jackets in the woods. It is a tradition which may explain why so many hunters wearing "protective" clothing are shot by other hunters. Next to green, red is the color on which the perception of color-blind persons is weakest—and those with color defects of vision comprise nearly a fifth of the male population. For most of them red is seldom distinguishable from the greens and browns of the woods, and a hunter's red garments are the reverse of conspicuous. In the California tests, however, color-blind subjects made an almost perfect score on yellow under all conditions. Even those with complete color perception put red far down the list of conspicuous colors and yellow high above all others.

For hunters the moral would seem to be: for safety, wear yellow.

Island Editors Say

Orderly Development

Subdivisions based on area development rather than the traditional and familiar grid system (blocks of property intersected repeatedly) are gaining in popularity.

It is found that area development requires fewer roads, serves more people, increases the number of taxable properties and, what is economically important, calls for fewer miles of domestic utilities than the conventional grid pattern of right-angle street corners. Curved roads and dead-end streets characterize area development.

Orderly development of a community makes for compactness of growth, in contrast to haphazard development attendant upon the skip-and-jump method. Those subdividers who fail to give this factor the study it needs will most likely be the ones with lots left on their hands when the present industrial expansion phase of our growth subsides with the completion of present contracts.

Drivers' Obligation

From time to time this newspaper has supported requests for larger warning signs at Craig's Crossing and the Alberni highway intersection. We are still of the opinion that signs much larger than those now in use should be erected to warn motorists, but we must not forget that car and truck drivers, as well as the railway, have an obligation at these danger points.

It is the obligation of every motorist to watch for road signs at all times, and act accordingly to prevent accidents. If such precautions are taken, the possibility of train-car collisions is remote. If a motorist is travelling in an area with which he is not familiar, common sense dictates that he should slacken speed and double his usual safety precautions—and if he follows that procedure he will have little to fear.

—PARKSVILLE PROGRESS

Unlucky Pedestrians

It was fortunate that the snow which fell last week was cleared in short order by the rain, but next time we may not be so lucky.

No effort was made to clear the melting snow from the sides of the roads and it seemed that the city was again waiting for the rain to do the job which the taxpayers expect to be done out of a snow clearing fund or out of general revenue. The rain is a cheap laborer, but not a very reliable one. Snow clearing should be done as quickly as possible. We should not have to wait until the rain takes its own good time.

Preserving History

Ladysmith is a young community compared with many in the province, but it is rich in history, nevertheless, and because it is young, much of the color and warmth of that history is still alive in the memories of pioneer residents who are still with us.

Now is the time for this community to organize an historical society, while the record is still largely intact. If a start is made now, much material could be gathered in time for the centennial celebrations here. Some of this material might be suitable for use as the basis of a pageant which would give the local celebration a truly local flavor.

—LADYSMITH CHRONICLE

Fishing Licence

Few people throughout the coastal area of British Columbia will quarrel with the decision of many organizations in the objection to a proposed special sports fishing licence for tidal waters.

For many years now, and many thousands of dollars later, considerable effort has been made in the direction of enticing tourists to visit our province where so many attractions are available. Where other things have failed, the salt water fishing and the various contests during the season have attracted numerous of these tourists.

If the suggested $10 fee were to be imposed the work of many years would be wiped out immediately. Not only would the visitors cease but also many tourist bodies and sports organizations who have catered to these and other provincial tourists would fold up.

I SAT down in a barber's chair the other day to wait my turn for a hair-do (or rather undo since I was to be clipped) and idly picked up a magazine. Barbers are like doctors and dentists, very concerned about customer boredom, hence the reading material they provide to while away the waiting period. Sometimes, as you know, the magazines aren't quite up-to-date, but what do we expect; they're free. Hence it was That my hand touched and grasped the Crowsnest, the monthly periodical of the navy. Date? January, 1953!

I always knew the RCN was a durable institution.

I'd never thought about the connotations of "old" when applied by expatriates to Britain until the U.K. information officer who was in town last week—a very personable chap too—demured slightly on the ground that while Britain was an ancient land it was also a modern one. True enough, if one thinks of Calder Hall as well as of the Tower of London. But of course the reference "old country" really has nothing to do with age but means "former country," a term that doesn't sound right to the ear.

It does not carry the same intimate nuance, either.

Apropos the item in this space the other day about the stoicism of Peter Pienaar the Boer hunter, Dean Whitlow quotes me a moving four-line verse. He used it in his Armistice Day sermon, which as a Presbyterian I did not hear. Here it is:

Courage and fortitude are lovely words,
And lovely are the virtues they define;
Yours was the courage, laughing soldier,
May the fortitude be mine.

That is well worth adding to your scrapbook.

Pitlochry, said the chap across the dinner table from me, and I thought the name had a nice, intriguing echo to it. Names of places often do have, as you can tell if you roll Waskesiu (Saskatchewan), Quiché (B.C.), Bartibog (New Brunswick) or Tor's Cove (Newfoundland) round your tongue and mind. Pitlochry I need not define geographically, I hope. You need not open an atlas, however; just cast your memory round Victoria and recall such street names as Tyee, Jutland, Dingley Dell, Oswego, Boleskine or Mystic Lane.

These are enough to excite any visitor and make him wish he lived amidst such fancy nomenclature.

The writers of Christmas card greetings try desperately each year to vary their lines, not to speak of the endless designs that indicate how artists seek new days of depicting the seasonal theme. The changes rung are necessarily limited, no matter the size of the latest dictionary. In essence too the modern card is not much different from the greeting of the very first Christmas card—an 1843 one-thousand edition portraying charitable acts and a happy family gathering—which bore the now traditional words: "A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year to You."

That pretty well sums it up in a genuine nutshell, anyway.

Someone has compiled medal statistics of the recent Olympic Games, or at least those concerning the competing Commonwealth countries, put together. The idea is that America and Russia have such big populations that a comparison of results is bound to seem lop-sided. Taken collectively however the Commonwealth nations made a fairly good showing, putting them in a respectable third place. The U.S.S.R. won 97 medals (gold, silver and bronze), the U.S. 74, and the Commonwealth 72.

One must remember of course that little Australia picked up half of the Commonwealth medals by herself.

Austerity Dims the Lights Again

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

IT IS a strange approach to Christmas this year. It is as though the dead hand of austerity is covering the tinsel and fairy lights and fogging the decorations. No one seems to be quite certain what is happening or what they are supposed to do. Everyone seems to be hoping for a good time but no one seems quite certain how to get it.

For some families there is genuine and unexpected joy. Some of the boys who have been on the beachhead at Port Said will be home for Christmas—something few dared to expect a few weeks ago. That is Christmas joy enough for these families. But there are amongst us many thousands of Hungarian refugees, a sad reminder of events in Central Europe, of broken families and broken hearts; and local conditions have added to their problems.

Many of these refugees have been found work, but the pattern of the employment position in Britain is changing rapidly. The unemployment rate is rising, and although the railways are still able to absorb many of those who are temporarily redundant in other industries, it will not be long before the employment position will be static rather than fluid. At the moment there is a great deal of job switching going on, but the reality is that it will be a jobless Christmas for many people, with emphasis on those in the motor trade, manufacturing, servicing and distributing.

Commercial travellers, too, are having a tough time. Many firms are cutting their staff in half to make the meagre petrol ration go round. Theatres are fearful of the impact of restrictions. They are perhaps one of the most vulnerable professions.

Retailers report unusual sales resistance. The public are purchasing cheaper lines and the more expensive items which usually have a good market at this time of the year show signs of lagging. Uncertainty brings caution and some shops have not engaged the same number of casual staff as they did last year.

The volume of savings has dropped too, due largely to withdrawals customary at this time of the year. The first upsurge noticed three months ago with more attractive interest rates has curved down again. Even premium bonds have not made the impact which was expected. November sales were little more than half the expected total, but without premium bonds the savings totals would have looked sick indeed.

The Suez Christmas of 1956 is going to be unusual. For many there is stringency and fear, for others there is exceptional personal joy—but the broad picture is not a happy one. The family car will have to spend most of its time in the garage. Transportation rates are going up in sympathy with the 33 per cent fuel rise, and services are being reduced with consequent discomfort and overcrowding. Many family reunions have been cancelled.

Yet behind it all there is a measure of thankfulness. We could have been in the throes of another world war. We could have been residents of Hungary instead of Britain. Things could have been desperate instead of merely difficult. There could have been long casualty lists instead of shiploads of troops coming home for Christmas, but the fact remains that there will have to be a big haul together to get economic equilibrium, and national divisions will have to be healed.

One thing which is self-evident in all this is that whatever criticism has been levelled at Britain for her intervention in the Middle East there is no longer any accusation of self-interest. The worst sufferer, with the possible exception of Egypt, is Britain herself.

According to the economists, we have suffered the loss of most of the economic advances we made during the last five years and that plateau of stable prices which we seemed to have reached is no longer with us—only the mountains of rising prices. It is fairly obvious that Britain once again is having to pay heavily for an action which she believed to be right, and in the opinion of many we are having to foot the whole of the bill for avoiding another world war.

The political situation is still unsettled.

Disunity is not as sharp as it was but the extremes of right and left are still vocal and nationally disturbing. The Labor Party is still arguing that we are suffering for "Eden's folly" and that it was all unnecessary. The extreme right wingers are still arguing that we should have gone on even if it meant another world war; but the solid mass of British opinion is much more inclined to the belief that the intervention was not only justified but essential. That was not the case when it started.

As political disharmony dies down we can expect the resilient spirit of Britain to re-exert itself. Already the oil is flowing in again and there are indications that industrial rationing may not be as severe as was feared. There are welcome signs of an American change of heart towards lease-lend oil which will obviate the worst effects on our dollar economy, and the optimists are already predicting that rationing of fuel will cease in April in time for the tourist trade. It is estimated that petrol rationing would cost the treasury more than $100,000,000 normally expended by summer tourists—something which no one wants to contemplate.

So if Britain's Christmas is not quite as happy as we would like it to be, we remember that there are many very much worse off and we still preserve a happy optimism that all will be well in the end.

Convicts in a Tent

DAVID LEEMING was elected mayor of Victoria 25 years ago, on Dec. 10, 1931.

Mr. Leeming, president of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, real estate and insurance agent, received 2,479 votes. He defeated E. B. Andros by 722 votes; had 959 over Frank Le Roy, candidate of the Victoria Ratepayers' Association; had 1,400 over Eugene Woodward, independent, and 2,429 over W. H. Sargent, independent. Mr. Sargent received only 50 votes.

Elected aldermen were P. R. Brown, Alex Peden, J. A. Worthington, W. H. Kinsman and W. D. Todd. Andrew McGavin was elected police commissioner; J. L. Beckwith, J. H. Campbell, V. E. Emery and Col. T. B. Monk, school trustees.

Col. Monk was the only ratepayers' association candidate who was elected.

"The day of the centralized empire is past," declared Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, prime minister of Canada. "We no longer live in a political empire. We must see to it that our resources . . . are thrown into the enterprise of building and strengthening an economic union."

Tariffs imposed by the Conservative government on goods from the United States and other foreign countries had brought about an increase in trade between Canada and Britain. Canada's trade with the U.S.A. had declined.

FIFTY years ago Victoria businessmen were pressing to move the Songhees Indian Reservation away from town and make room for a larger railway terminal.

"Are we going to allow 21 Indians, more or less, to stand in the way of the commercial advancement and the future prosperity of Victoria?" demanded H. G. Wilson, prominent wholesale merchant.

The E. and N. proposed to extend rail to Comox and Alberni. Victoria's cramped terminal was clogged with goods. Growth of the export-import business was stunted.

"People are beginning to look to Victoria," said Mr. Wilson. "They think Vancouver has had her day, the CPR having disposed of practically all its lands there, with the exception of what is required for terminal purposes. . . . The taking over of the E. and N. Railway by that company . . . has opened their eyes to the fact that Victoria has a future."

CHAIN-GANG convicts working on the roads were a familiar sight in colonial Victoria. Ninety-five years ago it was announced that the chain-gang was to be equipped with a large tent for rainy weather.

"Heretofore the plan has been to give the gang a holiday whenever the rain fell, but during the extraordinary wet weather we have been blessed with recently it was thought they were having too jolly times altogether, and so the tent was procured."

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

MY OLD Uncle Rafe did not go to church; but he was a very animated Christian who could argue the Bible with all comers. Christmas was to him a season of jubilation. A week before Christmas, much to the chagrin of all his relatives, he would join the wandering bands of the Salvation Army and, though a very indifferent player upon the trombone, would add his music to theirs through the wintry nights. He also enjoyed Salvation Army singing; and if in the midst of a purely instrumental rendering of Holy Night you have heard, some night, a sort of rain-barrel baritone suddenly take up the words, that would have been Uncle Rafe lowering his trombone and letting her go vocal.

If the Anglicans were putting on a pre-Christmas cantata, Uncle Rafe would be there, in the front row of the audience, so that he could join in without being conspicuous. He was particularly fond of Handel, whom he called the Holy Cheer Leader.

Anglican or Baptist, Presbyterian or Methodist, Uncle Rafe had no bigotry; so long as they jubilated at Christmas, he was with them body and soul. And never did he miss midnight Christmas mass at the Roman Catholic cathedral. To him, as he said, that pip the icing on it.

Uncle Rafe did not give lavish gifts to us, or to any of his numerous friends. He usually gave me a 25-cent bandanna handkerchief.

"Use it, boy," he would say. "A man looks ridiculous twiddling behind those white dollies they sell as hankies."

But without fail, he always bought three more gifts than his Christmas list called for. Three. Always three.

"You never know," he said, "who you forget. And to forget, on Christmas, would be terrible. Remember, son, they had to lay Him in a manger. Watch out for the Stranger, Christmas day."

Thus at daybreak, Christmas morn, Uncle Rafe would be out on his front steps watching for the first three Strangers who might go by—oh, the milkman, a paperboy, or some besodden reveller coming home at dawn.

And on them Uncle Rafe would press his three extra gifts of Christmas—a red handkerchief, a pair of pretty candles, an aluminum saucepan done up in white tissue with lovely ribbon. Small, odd gifts; but Uncle Rafe was a small odd man, and he worshipped God.

Letters to the Editor

Community Spirit

May I take this opportunity of thanking all those persons and the Esquimalt police who assisted in the search for Christopher Zirpolo who wandered away from his home on Dec. 11.

Also all those who helped to avert the flooding of homes during heavy rain of Saturday and Sunday.

The Esquimalt community is very grateful to the naval and military personnel who assisted us on both occasions, and to CJVI for the efficient operation of their mobile unit, and the help of the [illegible]

We should all say: Well done, Jimmy Palmer.

ALFRED C. WURTELE,
Reeve of Esquimalt.

Timely Assistance

The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce wishes to express sincere thanks and appreciation to the many companies, the navy and the army who provided trucks and men in answer to our appeal for assistance in evacuating the people and household effects from the flooded zone of the Doncaster-Oakland area Sunday, Dec. 9.

It is realized by this organization that without the full co-operation of the citizens of this area, many families would have suffered considerable losses.

VIC SMITH,
Vice-president.

Supporters Thanked

I wish to sincerely thank the voters of Victoria municipality for the confidence they have placed in me. I will do my utmost to build on that confidence.

Also I wish to thank all my supporters and friends for the encouragement and work they did on my behalf.

It is to be hoped that next year's election will bring out a considerably higher percentage of voters so we may have a fuller expression of opinion in the future and a broader direction for the council members' guidance.

Dr. Brock Chisholm

Your readers appreciate the service rendered by The Daily Colonist recently in opening their columns to the views of that eminent Canadian, Dr. Brock Chisholm.

Many of us, unlike a recent correspondent in your columns, find his ideas deserving of the greatest consideration and the reverse of being a "barren ideology" and a "tilting at windmills."

Truth can only be gleaned through full and unfettered discussion anyhow.

This latter, alas, is only too often non-existent as it is frequently only too difficult to get publicity for rationalist and humanist ideas over radio and in press.

Sacrificial Goat

From a study of events anent the Suez crisis the view emerges that something in the nature of a world-wide earthquake has made Britain the sacrificial goat, and a very serious strain as touching Canada's loyalty to the mother country has been imposed by the anti-British behavior of Uncle Sam's diplomats. Yet it has had the beneficial effect of awakening some Canadians to a sense of national filial ties to Britain and our dignity in world affairs, particularly in relation to the U.S.A. As a sort of crucible it has disclosed, for one thing, that our trust in the good offices of Uncle Sam has been greatly impaired.

To this writer it seems that there are two strikes on us even before we go to bat in the international game seeing that, as a member of UNO, we are bedfellows with the not-so-dependable Uncle and also with World Enemy No. 1 with that ever-ready, hair-trigger veto, so devastating to the British Commonwealth, which it has used nearly 80 times already.

Scanning Canada's geographical position it behooves us to check our security very carefully. A military exposition of a potential polar invasion has demonstrated that Canada would be the "cockpit" of this continent, and bearing in mind the very extensive military installations on Canadian soil operated by American troops, plus Uncle's enormous financial stake in this country, our autonomy may be endangered. It would therefore appear wise that our authorities doing business with this great power should be wise as serpents and arm themselves with the caution which the Good Book teaches and "not put their trust in princes nor the son of man, in whom there is no help."

Vancouver Gets More Refugees

VANCOUVER (CP) — The third freedom flight brought 64 Hungarians here Saturday, and all are expected to be settled in private homes during the week-end.

There were 17 families aboard the CPA plane when it landed at International Airport after a flight from Vienna via the Polar route. The refugees included 16 single men and two single girls.

Two more flights are due late this month, and a third Jan. 2.

Duncan to Hear Handel Messiah

Victoria Choral Society, which sang Handel's "Messiah" to more than 1,000 persons at the Royal Theatre last week, will present the oratorio in Duncan United Church at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Graham Steed will conduct a 60-voice choir and soloists Margaret Abbott, soprano, outstanding soloist at the Victoria concert; Eleanor Duff, contralto; John Bray, bass-baritone, and Edward Oldfield, tenor.

Angry British Troops Seize 1,000 Egyptians

PORT SAID, Egypt (UP) — British troops seized nearly 1,000 Egyptian men Saturday in an iron-fisted crackdown following attacks on Anglo-French and United Nations patrols in this occupied city.

Almost 500 British [illegible] swooped down on the Arab quarter and sealed it off in a ring of steel. They rounded up almost 1,000 Arabs and rushed into a house-to-house search for arms.

Earlier, Egyptian guerrillas attacked Anglo-French troops, and patrols of the United Nations emergency force with the occupation troops fired back in sharp fighting with rifles, grenades and machine guns which left two Egyptians dead, 14 wounded and one British officer hurt.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell, Anglo-French field commander here, asked UNEF commander Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns to issue a strong protest to the Egyptian government over the attacks.

He said they were led by Fadayeen "suicide" commandos. Burns was reported to have protested the attacks, but the Egyptian government rejected responsibility for the fighting and demanded that Port Said be turned over immediately to Egyptian control.

WARNING GIVEN

Stockwell warned Burns that he reserved the right to protect his men and that guerilla attacks might provoke the British into "really violent action."

The Anglo-French commander made the first move [illegible] after the pre-dawn attacks yesterday. His men poured into the Arab quarter, sealing it off with barbed wire as they went. Troops found seven rifles—two of them Russian made.

British tanks also moved into the waterfront section of the city to protect troops disembarking in the Anglo-French pullout.

Allies to Quit Egypt Today

ABU SUWEIR, Egypt (AP)—An official Egyptian source said last night all British and French forces would be withdrawn from Port Said today.

He said that 1,000 Egyptian policemen are to be moved by train from Ismailia to Port Said Sunday morning and the British and French would be gone by the time they arrive.

UN sources at Ballah earlier said there was a slight possibility the British-French withdrawal from Port Said would be completed Monday.

Syrians Adamant

DAMASCUS (AP) — Syria will not permit one drop of oil to cross her territory until the Middle East situation returns to the status existing before British-French and Israeli invasions of Egypt, Syrian Economy Minister Khalil Kallas said Saturday.

Kallas made the comment to reporters following a 30-minute meeting of Premier Sabri Assali and U.S. Ambassador James Moose Jr. The United States recently instructed Moose to press the Syrian government for resumption of the flow of oil across Syria by pipeline as soon as possible.

New NATO Secretary

Spaak Moves Swiftly In Call for Freedom

PARIS (AP)—Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian foreign minister and NATO's new secretary-general, moved swiftly yesterday to make a unified Europe a vital force within the Atlantic community.

Ending a week of intense diplomatic activity, Spaak led the council of Europe's foreign ministers in a unanimous call for freedom in Eastern Europe and a permanent settlement in the Middle East based on United Nations actions.

Spaak's resolution echoed much of a similar statement adopted Friday by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but went a step further by urging European members to use a common policy to solve their most urgent problems.

The ministers agreed that European delegations to international organizations such as the UN and NATO should work together as closely as possible with full and frequent consultation.

Earlier, Spaak, who still has four months as his country's foreign minister, told a news conference he will devote that period to promoting European unity. He said he believed treaties setting up joint development of nuclear industrial power—the Euratom plan—and a common trade market will be signed by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg next month.

He said he would strive to get both treaties ratified by the Belgian Parliament before he steps out in April to succeed Lord Ismay at NATO headquarters.

Spaak told the news conference the revolt in Hungary was history's first example of "collective suicide of a whole people." The Hungarian people, he said, "prefer a struggle to the death rather than accept an imposed regime."

This quality could not have been foreseen, he said, and, therefore, no declarations by NATO could have affected the revolt one way or another.

Spaak observed some Hungarians might have had the mistaken idea that NATO would help them when they rose against the Soviets but neither NATO nor any member government had promised intervention with armed forces.

Saanich Kills School Plan

Library Scheme Adopted

Four referendums and six questions asked on voters' ballots in Saanich yesterday put vote-counters hours behind last night in attempting to decipher preferences.

It was not until long after midnight that all polls were counted, but the trend appeared to be set early in the evening on office space alternatives, waterworks by-law and library question.

The schools money by-law won a 1,788-1,854 vote, but fell short of the 60 per cent required.

WATERWORKS ENDORSED

The library proposal was adopted, 2,967 to 1,204, and the waterworks refinancing by-law was endorsed by close to a 3-to-1 vote.

Voters solidly backed both continuing joint hall talks with the city and a stop-gap measure to alleviate the space shortage by adding to the Royal Oak Hall. The alternative of building a new hall in Saanich was turned down by more than 2-to-1.

John Flamsteed, who died in 1719, was the first to be appointed astronomer royal of England.

Roof Racketeers Lie Low After Colonist Exposure

Roof racketeers making the rounds of Saanich and Victoria recently "adopt a non-existent company name whenever they are put on the spot," acting Saanich police chief Bert Pearson said yesterday.

No new reports of roofing repair gyp artists have been received, he said, since The Daily Colonist reported the loss of an elderly man's life savings in Cordova Bay as a result of the racket.

Municipal licence inspector Roy Wootten said yesterday that he received calls from two or three city residents who stated they were "taken in" by the would-be roof repairers, and were going to attempt to press legal action.

The Saanich building inspector will visit homes Monday where the alleged repairs were made to assess the actual cost of work done.

Other persons have inquired about the men, believed to be from Vancouver, and asked what could be done if they are approached for repair jobs.

Chief Pearson urges residents to call a reputable city firm if it is pointed out that repairs are needed.

The reputable firms, he said, can be checked through the Chamber of Commerce and credit agencies.

Central Saanich 'Yes' for Library

The big controversy in Central Saanich—whether the municipality should subscribe to the Victoria Public Library board or not—was resolved last night with 25-vote "yes" margin.

Result was 282 "Yes" and 257 "No." Voting was very close in both Saanichton and Brentwood.

The retiring councillors, John Windsor, 365 votes, and Harry Peard, 403, were re-elected, defeating newcomer Harry Baade, who polled 242 votes.

Reeve H. Rupert Brown, Police Commissioner George D. Moody and Mrs. Joyce MacDonald, school trustee for Central Saanich on District 63 school board, were elected by acclamation.

at the "public's apathy to municipal affairs."

To one who has been in public life the past 15 years," he said, "it is a bitter disappointment that so many are not sufficiently interested in their local government to exercise their franchise.

"I am sure the apathy gives much concern not only to elected representatives in Saanich but all over."

Coun. George Austin said last night he was "more than delighted at the result of this election, for this reason: that despite the dirt that was thrown at the 'old guard,' they received this endorsement."

He said he would like to thank the ratepayers again for their support and working so hard for him.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, who has one year remaining in his own term, hailed the "decisive poll won by the three incumbents" as a definite indication that the ratepayers are "satisfied with the policies laid down and the work carried out by council this year."

Tallies were: Coun. George Austin, 2,576; Coun. Eugene Despecker, 1,873; Coun. Ainslie Worthington, 1,872, and S. W. Brock, 1,870.

Next closest contender was Walter Mosedale with 1,270. Stanley Murphy won 1,143 votes and the rest of the field trailed below 1,000.

Police commissioner George Askey easily won another term in office, winning 2,099 votes to dpponent Lionel Speller's 1,531.

Small Cleaners Make Compromise

Although several smaller dry cleaning firms in Victoria have increased the price for cleaning a suit from $1.25 to $1.35, few, if any, have made the jump to $1.50.

Victoria's four large dry cleaning firms raised their price to $1.50 this week after their employees won a wage increase.

Yarrows Manager E. W. Izard Retires

After 42 years with Yarrows Ltd., E. W. Izard, general manager of the Victoria shipbuilding firm, retires at the end of the year.

He will be succeeded by John A. Wallace, now assistant general manager.

Mr. Izard served his apprenticeship with Yarrow & Company, shipbuilders, London. In 1914 he came to Canada with Norman Yarrow and was put in charge of drydocking and repairs of passenger, cargo and naval vessels at Yarrows.

During the Second World War he became general manager.

Born in Cambridgeshire, England, he was educated at Brighton Technical College and Glasgow University.

Mr. Izard has had a hobby of bell-ringing almost all his life and is master bell-ringer at Christ Church Cathedral. He is a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, an English bell-ringing group.

Mr. Wallace joined Yarrows Ltd. in 1946, when the Burrard Drydock Co. Ltd.—the firm founded by his grandfather—acquired the Victoria shipbuilding company.

Born in Vancouver in 1921, Mr. Wallace served during the Second World War with the RCAF and later the Royal Canadian Navy. In 1945, he began a general apprenticeship at Burrard Drydock.

Centennial Cards Ready for Mailing

VANCOUVER (CP)—The official B.C. centennial invitations were released Saturday. They measure 10½ by 13½ inches, are brightly illuminated and varicoloured.

The invitations are in the hands of all local centennial committees for sending to former B.C. residents now living in other parts of the world.

They read: "Greetings. You are requested to attend British Columbia's 100th birthday party. A year of thanksgiving and a joyous festival of gaiety, carnival and pageantry—spectacular fetes by sea, air and land—melody, dancing and drama—great historic scenes reinvoked before you—a year of splendor, revelry and fun. Truly a century to celebrate."

Crystal Ball Gazer Predicts:

Farouk Will Reign Again, Nasser Flee to Russia

NAPLES (UP) — A noted Italian crystal ball gazer, who was given credit for anticipating the Suez Canal crisis and the re-election of President Eisenhower, predicted yesterday that former King Farouk of Egypt would regain his throne and President Gamal Abdel Nasser would fly to exile in Russia.

Giuseppe Janigro, better known as the "Magician of Toledo," was one of the first of the fortune-tellers who, in the last days of the year, traditionally make public their predictions for the coming year.

Thousands of Italians annually travel to Naples to hear his verdict of what their future will be.

Here are some of the magician's predictions for 1957:

1. Middle East tension will ease up. There will be internal strife and a civil war that will lead to Farouk regaining his throne and Nasser fleeing to Russia in exile.

2. The Middle Eastern states will submit themselves, after bitter struggles, to the will of the West determined to ensure the peace and prosperity of the world. American air bases will be established in several Middle Eastern states.

3. The Soviet Union will continue to seek further penetration in the Middle East by finding new ambitious local leaders to use as pawns.

4. Communism will be banned in several European countries.

5. There will be civil wars in Africa, Europe and South America.

6. But the third world war will not break out in 1957.

As regards strictly Italian affairs Janigro predicted among other things: a serious political crisis resulting in the nomination of a young premier; the former Italian colony of Libya, now an independent state, will be returned to Italy; two important political and one religious personality will die; earthquakes, floods and deluges will be numerous, and Vesuvius will erupt violently in the spring.

Despite a fierce attack by Indians in Amazon interior of Brazil, actor John Sutton reached city of Belem safely with a wounded companion. Fate of other members of movie company filming native life is not known. Indians were reported holding many of the movie-makers captive. —(CPC).

Bias Clause Quashed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes of the British Columbia Supreme Court declared racial discrimination has no place in Canada when he overruled an anti-Jewish clause in a will.

"I view with disfavor the power of testators to control from their grave the choice in marriage of their beneficiaries," he said.

Alfred Hurshman, who died here Jan. 7, 1955, left an estate valued at $162,000. He willed a life interest to his wife, Mary, and on her death half of the residue to his only child, Georgia, if she was not the wife of a Jew.

A month before the will was made the daughter married Ivan Mindlin, a Jewish medical student in Winnipeg.

In a written judgment Saturday, Mr. Justice McInnes ruled that Mrs. Mindlin is entitled to her half share, about $80,000, despite her marriage to a Jew.

Natives Hack Missionaries Into Pieces

SYDNEY, Australia (UP) — The Sydney Mirror reported Saturday that 12 native missionary teachers have been hacked to death by superstitious fellow natives in remote New Guinea.

The "Sun," in a similar report, said two were killed.

Both reports said the bodies had been found after the group of Lutheran missionaries—belonging to the American "Christian Missionary Alliance"—had arrived in the area by plane.

Two European missionaries with the group were believed to have escaped into the jungle.

PIGS FALL DEAD

The reports said an uproar started when the natives' pigs began to die in large numbers.

The European missionaries were blamed for the pig plague. The "Mirror" said crazed savages surrounded the mission station wielding axes and cut down 12 unarmed native teachers, then dismembered the dead and the dying.

Later, it said, other natives attacked the missionary plane and smashed it to pieces.

A Lutheran mission official here, said he had heard that one of the mission's planes had run into trouble.

"Another plane has gone out to investigate," he commented.

Key to Election

Tories Looking West for Victory

OTTAWA (CP)—Choice of a westerner as the new Progressive Conservative chief has aroused speculation on the effect it will have on party chances in the West in the next election.

The party which chose Saskatchewan lawyer John Diefenbaker last week now holds eight of the 70 Commons seats representing the four Western provinces.

Mr. Diefenbaker, MP for Prince Albert, is his party's only Saskatchewan representative.

TWO-PARTY AIM

One of the main Conservative aims, stressed in repeated convention speeches, is for a return to "the two-party system." To Conservatives that means whipping the CCF and Social Credit parties in their Western Canada strongholds.

Of the 22 CCF Commons members, all except one are from the West where the CCF governs Saskatchewan. All of the 15 Social Credit members are from Alberta and British Columbia where their party governs provincially. The Liberals have 24 MPs from the four Western provinces and hold control in the Manitoba legislature.

TRENDS WATCHED

Conservatives hoping for better future in the next election are looking not only to their western leader but also to trends in the last three elections.

At the last federal vote in 1953, the country's ballots went 49.6 per cent to Liberals, 31.4 per cent to Conservatives and 19 per cent to other parties—chiefly CCF and Social Credit.

The Conservative share of the popular vote rose from its all-time low of 27.7 per cent in 1945 to 29.8 per cent in 1949. The "other party" share reached its peak of 30.9 per cent in 1945 and dropped sharply to 20.1 per cent in 1949, a switch to the Liberals being mainly responsible.

Liberals now are dominant in the Commons with 169 seats compared with 51 held by Conservatives, 22 by CCF and 15 by Social Credit. There are three independents and five vacancies.

Sherwood Has Shrunk

'I Could Catch Robin Hood' Says Sheriff of Nottingham

By EDDY GILMORE

SHERWOOD FOREST, England (AP)—The sheriff of Nottingham looked out over Sherwood Forest and said that with the state of the woods today he believes he could catch Robin Hood.

"I'm 57," he said, "getting a little bald on top and not as fast on my feet as I used to be, but so much of the forest has been destroyed that there just isn't too much for Robin to hide in."

The sheriff was asked what kind of a horse he'd use to collar the legendary hero of these leafy woods.

"Horse?" he asked in surprise. "Why I've never been on a horse in my life. I'm a railway man."

The sheriff is Councillor Roland Green, a commercial representative for Britain's nationalized railways. He was elected to the office on May 28 this year.

REMAINS POPULAR

"I don't get a penny for being the sheriff of Nottingham," he explained, "but I do get a lot of letters from boys and girls who see Robin Hood on television."

"Some of them," he said, "are a little rough on me for being rough on Robin. But I love to get them just the same and I do try to answer all of them."

Sheriff Green takes a great interest in the forest as do other officials of Nottingham, this pleasant city in the very heart of Britain.

The forest, they all admit, has seen better days.

Stretching from the city of Nottingham up into Yorkshire for about 40 miles, a great many of its trees have gone with the years. Many of the trees were felled during the First World War. They were never replanted. The water table has sunk and it's difficult to make things grow in the barren places.

WAR CASUALTIES

The Second World War saw much of the forest used for ammunition storage. Trees were smashed and broken by big army trucks and many have been blown down by storms.

Standing in the heart of the forest is an area of giant trees in which even Robin Hood wouldn't be too proud to hide.

Biggest and oldest of these is the Major Oak, more than 600 years old, its spreading limbs supported by chains to keep them from falling of their own age and weight.

The bustling city of Nottingham is growing, but it's not expanding into Sherwood Forest. Zoning laws prevent this, and county officials say it will remain a monument to Robin Hood for many years to come.

Pre-Christmas Rush of Events Continues

The pre-Christmas rush in the field of local entertainment goes right on this week; in fact, it doesn't really end until a week from today at various special church services.

Taking it from the top, Victoria Symphony Orchestra's surprise program of skits, carol singing and a little light music is in the Royal Theatre at 3 p.m. today and 8.30 p.m. tomorrow.

Music, for instance, will be the "Hansel and Gretel" prelude and the "South Pacific" suite. It's a students' concert today as well as the regular subscription Sunday affair.

The "Nativity" section of Handel's "Messiah" will be sung in Centennial United Church this evening under direction of Peter Copeland. Soloists include Alice Waddell, Dudley Wickett, Mrs. S. F. Leech, Mrs. Alice Hunt and Allison Hill.

One of the major shows of the week is the ninth annual "Carols in the Candlelight" by the choir of First United Church in the church at 8.15 p.m. Tuesday.

Here, directors are Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberto Wood and soloists are Beverley Glenday, Beverley Heiman, Paul Wharf, Marjorie Norbury, Marlene Vance, William Gaetz, Joyce Hunt, Allan Husband, Alice Waddell and organist Malcolm Hamilton.

ALICE WADDELL
. . . Carols in Candlelight

Joey Barrett and Deanne Veideck of the Seattle Skating Club will be guest stars when 600 members of Victoria Figure Skating Club present "Christmas [illegible] directed by Mary Rose Thacker, in the Arena at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Christmas concert of Oak Bay Junior High School is in the school at 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

The program includes school choirs led by Mrs. Agnes Henning, Philip Fawcett and Derek MacDermot, the band and bell ringers led by E. A. Eames, dancers directed by Mrs. Phyllis Clement, a play directed by Eric Orme and carol singing.

St. Barnabas' Anglican Church presents its annual Nativity pageant on the evenings of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

* * *

The Schubert Club of Victoria, giving its first concert in almost two years, will be led by Mrs. Vera Barclay in a candlelight carol service at First Baptist Church at 8.30 p.m. Friday.

Soloists will be Rosa Robertson, Isobel Atchison, Ruth Tait, Wendy Cox, Chris Saunders, Kay Hilton, Marlene Vance and Mrs. Barclay. The choir, disbanded last year for a number of reasons, numbers 40 voices for this event.

Winding up the week is the third and last Santa Claus show in the Royal Theatre, Saturday morning, put on by some 75 dancers of the Florence Clough Dance Academy for the Solarium.

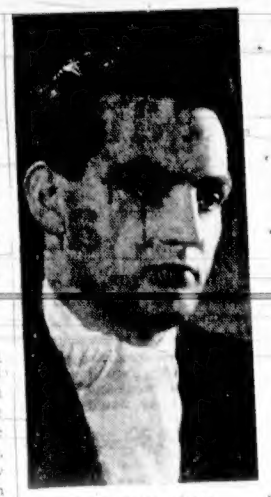
Winding up the month is "Ceremony of the Carols," in Christ Church Cathedral at 3 p.m. Dec. 23; "A Christmas Carol" in Langham Court Theatre Dec. 28 and 29, and Bach's Christmas oratorio, in Christ Church Cathedral at 3 p.m. Dec. 30.

* * *

Second try-out for "Anastasia," the suspense drama to be presented Feb. 16 to 23, will be held by Victoria Theatre Guild in Langham Court Theatre at 8 p.m. tomorrow. [illegible] for men.

* * *

Columbia's "The Bridge on the River Kwai," to be filmed in Ceylon next year, should be a dandy. Signed for the cast some time ago were Alec Guiness and Jack Hawkins, and the final leading role now has been filled by William Holden.



STANLEY MARTIN
Bass-baritone role in Handel's "Messiah" will be taken by Victoria singer Stan Martin when the oratorio is presented by the Canadian Memorial Church choir in Vancouver Dec. 23, directed by Glynward Jones, choral director of the church. Mr. Martin also plans a recital at Centennial United Church here early in February.

Borge Brings Wit, Charm with His Piano

Victor Borge, the one-man Danish spectacular, brought his wit and his charm and his piano before a nationwide TV audience again Tuesday night and, as usual, he killed the people. This was billed as the second half of his act but as Borge has explained, there will later be a third and fourth and possibly fifth half on TV.

Borge used great chunks of his Broadway show which ran for 800-odd performances and also added new material which seems to flow from him fairly effortlessly. Unlike the material of some entertainers, a repeat of the Borge stuff that you have already seen doesn't pall, because he rarely does it the same way twice and you never know quite when he's going to spring it on you. There were customers who went back to his Broadway show as many as 20 times.

* * *

I suppose it's stretching things a bit to call it a one man show since he was augmented this time by a fairly sizable orchestra which fuunctioned partly as straight men to a gagged-up version of "Without A Song" and more properly as an orchestra to a rendition of Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto. Mostly, though, it's just Borge clowning it up.

"I talk until I don't know what to talk about," he says. "I sit down and play and if I feel there is something I should say, I say it. And then if I feel there's something I might play, I play it—until I feel like talking again, and then I talk until . . . well, it just goes on like that."

That's as sensible a description of Borge as any I know. He is a master of irrelevance, stepping up to the footlights to ask a customer: "Is rigor mortis contagious?" or interrupting a flight of nonsense with "I still don't know why Jimmy Roosevelt signed that letter" or anything else that happens to pop into his mind. It's a sort of stream of consciousness monologue, anyhow, full of unfinished sentences, pregnant pauses, and wild fits of absurdity.

* * *

Many people have imitated Liberace. In fact, there is hardly a comedian alive who hasn't. But Borge's is the only definitive imitation of Liberace, the only one that really wraps up the subject for all time. "Before I did this imitation of Liberace," he explains, "I asked his permission. Unfortunately I haven't got it yet."

I also like Borge on the subject of his family, though I don't suppose his family does. I'm sorry he dropped that one about his father: "He invented four up, five up, six up—and died a broken man. He never knew how close he came." But he has others. Now his father has invented a burglar alarm which got stolen. And there's a nice Charles Addams' touch to his remark: "We have three children—one of each."

His closing to the strains of "Auf Wiedersehn" remains happily almost completely intact. "Every so often a handkerchief comes out to wipe away a tear from laughter. That's my reward. The rest goes to the government."

The second of NBC's Festivals of Music I found an enormous improvement over the first, largely because this time they didn't try to overwhelm us with music or stars. The first one had just about every star that either RCA-Victor or Sol Hurok had under contract stuffed into it.

The second one on Monday was a good deal more restrained, with fewer stars and fewer offerings which gave the singers and the instrumentalists a little more time and the whole production a little more of the leisurely pace of the concert hall.

Prince, Cooper Both Fighting Battle of Bulge

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD — Maurice Chevalier, discussing Audrey Hepburn in their "Love in the Afternoon" film: "I play her father and I love her like that—like a father." Maurice is 68, but that's not easy to believe.

Famous last words—from Joan Collins: "I want to be taken seriously as an actress. I'm through with glamor." . . . Gary Cooper is fighting the battle of the bulge. Something happened to his metabolism and all that French food last summer turned to Avoirdupois. I'm sending him a membership for my eaters anonymous . . . New title for the Sir Laurence Olivier-Marilyn Monroe "Sleeping Prince": "The Prince and the Show Girl," which might be confused with what went on in Monaco.

* * *

Julie Harris's chances for Selena role in "Peyton Place" are now rated better than Jane Powell's . . . It pays to sing with Bing Crosby—$150,000 to date for Grace Kelly from their "High Society" "True Love" recording . . . and if Prince Rainier doesn't learn to push the table away he'll be as plum as the pigeons that strut in front of the palace in Monaco. To fight the food, his serene roly-polyness is installing a gymnasium next to his bedroom.

Steve Cochran postcards that between takes of his picture, "Il Grido," in Rome and Vienna, he's adding recipes to his international cook book. "At the end of January I go to London for another picture for my own company. See you next year."

* * *

Rex Harrison's temporary replacement in "My Fair Lady" on Broadway is a little-heard-of 34-year-old British actor, Edward Mulhare.

If I see another picture of Martine Carol getting in or out of a bathtub, I'll scream. She keeps protesting: "No more baths on the screen," but she's always in a tub when she protests—too much, methinks.

* * *

The man suing Porfirio Rubirosa for cutting him with a champagne glass in London's "Stork Club" should know it's an old Santo Domingan custom to drink champagne and toss the glass to the ceiling—at least that's what Ruby is saying. He's been honeymooning with his 19-year-old bride, Odile Rodin, in Britain. Next stop—New York. But not Hollywood. Wonder what he's afraid of?

Mike Todd, who can always be counted on to do everything in a grand manner, is flying 20 couples to Hollywood from New York for the opening here of his "Around the World in 80 Days" at the Carthay Circle, Dec. 22. They couldn't get tickets for it in New York. The fare and hotel expenses are on Mike.

* * *

Arlene Dahl was so sure husband Fernando Lamas would go over big in the Ethel Merman musical, "Happy Hunting," that she signed a lease for a year for a New York apartment before the pla opened on Broadway. Arlene will commute around the world for pictures.

Matinee Idol Showered With Gifts

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Rosanno Brazzi, the new sleepy-eyed matinee idol, has so overwhelmed some U.S. females that they're showering him with gifts from a watch to a Cadillac.

After enjoying European fame from 87 Italian and French films, the handsome Italian actor struck gold in this country after three Hollywood movies made overseas, "Three Coins in a Fountain," "The Barefoot Contessa" and "Summertime."

Brazzi, with an air of bewilderment but pleasure, sat in his Beverly Hills hotel suite today fingering a handsome watch inscribed, "To Rossano, Buona Fortuna (good luck)."

"It came from a fan in Chicago," he said with a shrug. "And when I arrived in New York there was a Cadillac—from a girl in Tulsa, Ohio, no Oklahoma. She was the only child in a very rich family.

HE SAID NO

"I said no, of course, but she insisted I keep the car so what else could I do? I have paid her back in many gifts that more than equal the car's price. I have never met her. We have spoken on the telephone about 10 times.

"My career has been very lucky," the ex-attorney turned actor said. "I was starred in my first picture. I receive fan letters from Japan, Spain, many countries. Since 'Summertime' I receive 30,000 letters a month from the United States. I had to open an office! It is fantastic.

"I get letters from women inviting me to stay for 15 days, and so forth. One American woman came to Venice to see me."

Rossano is here on his second visit to finish a film made in Germany for Universal-International Studio, "Interlude," in which he portrays a married man in love with June Allyson. Next year the sought-after star does the Ezio Pinza role in the movie version of "South Pacific."

In person, the 38-year-old Brazzi is the same character he appears to be on the screen, the type who lights your cigarets, helps you on with your coat and has other good mannerisms that the usual Hollywood actor forgets.

"Most of my fans are teen-age girls," the suave actor said. "They did not like my love for Katharine Hepburn in 'Summertime.' They think love should be with a young girl.

"American women over 30 look very good.

"Katie looks marvellous, she's 10 years older than I am. Ginger Roger's looks so young. June Allyson is ageless, she could be 20. I just finished a film with Joan Crawford. What beautiful skin and figure! She must be 50."

Needle Dust

Elvis' Tender Love Really Irish Nora

By JIM TAYLOR

Far be it from me to disillusion the screaming females in the crowd, but there are a couple of things wrong with Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender."

This of course will come as no shock to a great many music lovers.

In the first place, it's ungrammatical. In the second place, it's not "Love Me Tender" at all, it's "Nora Lee." And it was written long before Tom Edison's dog first listened to "His Master's Voice."

A little research at the library brought forth a volume called "Richard Hayward's Collection of Irish Folk Songs." This contains one called "Nora Lee," written by some anonymous Irishman, which is a note-for-note duplicate of "Love Me Tender" (or "Love Me Tenderly" if Elvis could speak English).

So what was originally a simple Irish folk song with simple lyrics is now a big pop number.

Words to live by, Mr. Presley.

* * *

RETURN OF DAVY CROCKET: Fess Parker, who made the country coonskin-conscious about a year ago with his "Ballad of Davy Crockett," has a new disc out from another Walt Disney western, "The Ballad of John Coulter" . . . The Kossol Sisters, one of the top new vocal groups, make their second bid for a hit with "Kissin' Cousins," a bouncing hillbilly type thing that just might catch on . . . Vince Martin and the Tarriers have come out with "The Banana Boat Song," a calypso number that is almost a cinch to be a hit. Harry Belafonte recorded it first and did a better job in his long-play, but called it "Day-o" and because it wasn't out as a single it didn't sell . . . Also watch Mitzi Martin's "I'll Go Way Up On A Mountain."

* * *

CHRISTMAS MUSIC: Roger Williams has an LP out of straight Christmas music that is one of the best to come out yet . . . The Heartbeats' version of "A Thousand Miles Away" is starting to move . . . The Beverley Sisters, trying their darndest to sound like Patience and Prudence, have put out a new version of "Greensleeves" . . . Kitty Kallen's latest is something called "Saturday Blues," while Fats Domino does one called "Blue Monday," backed with "What's The Reason I'm Not Pleasin' You."

Mr. Cronin's story of the young Scottish priest, Father Francis, is one of the classics of modern literature. Vividly portrayed by Gregory Peck, we follow this Twenty-side youth through the tragic events leading up to his taking Holy Orders which eventually lead him to a remote Chinese village where he struggles to work out the salvation of the inhabitants—and his own. A great story, told with realism and sympathy and one you will wish to see again and again. Heartily recommended.

I Know What I Like

By Tony Emery

No Two Agree on Education Aim

A feature of mid-20th century life which will not have escaped the observant is a certain preoccupation with education.

Never before in the history of civilization can so much time and space — and so little real thought — have been devoted to this all-important topic. At this moment, Victoria is exercised about the cost of adding classroom space to accommodate the children who spring from nowhere every year, and this concern is echoed in every town and city in North America.

It is difficult to pick up a magazine or periodical without finding a contentious article on education; the radio almost daily yields its contribution of panel discussions or weighty sermons by leading educationists.

Out of this welter of fact and fiction, statistics, hysterics, heroics, idiocy and common sense one thing emerges in startling clarity, viz., that no two people agree on what should be the aim of education.

* * *

For some, education is the same as instruction. For Dean Scarle all education is, in the last analysis, moral education. Our American neighbors are divided on this, as on every other important issue.

One faction, less popular now than formerly, operates in a Dewey, Dewey fog: under this permissive regime the child chooses the curriculum, selects the lesson, hires the teachers, fires the inspector, and emerges from this pleasurable experience tremendously well-adjusted (so I am informed) and just able to spell out the headlines in the Police Gazette.

TONY EMERY

Of recent years a more old-fashioned view has come to be aired in the United States. This second school of thought, very worried by the fact that Russia is now graduating as many engineers as the U.S., looks upon the school and university as an essembly line for the production on a Fordian scale of nuclear physicists, engineers, scientists and mathematicians.

* * *

Britain is busy endeavoring to democratize a system of education designed originally for an intellectual elite. The "public" schools are daily becoming more public and less private; the aim is gradually to convert a system set up to produce proconsuls for a now non-existent empire to a system which will produce truly democratic citizens. No mean task in Britain, where the caste stratification dies hard.

France believes in working her adolescents to the verge of neurosis, though the survivors are undeniably brilliant. Germany exalts industry above all other virtues, with what results you may know if you have ever had to use a German textbook.

While it is not entirely proper for me to comment upon the public system of education in British Columbia, I may perhaps permit myself one or two general remarks. I must say at once that I do not know of anywhere in the world where a child of average [illegible] is so wonderfully catered for.

An excellent balance is struck between truly democratic principles on the one hand and a benevolent paternalism on the other. The schools are beautifully equipped; the teachers are wholly admirable; the administration is extremely efficient.

* * *

This said, I must own that I feel that the child of outstanding ability is severely handicapped by being born in Canada or the United States. Only as a post-graduate university student will he or she get the individual attention that the talented European child is accorded from the age of 15 or 16.

There are two things which, though obvious, may be worth stating: one, that when a class numbers more than 25 real teaching becomes progressively more impossible; the other, that when you are 20 you have done about half the serious reading you are ever going to do.

I hope parents will bear these truisms in mind; I trust we shall never be satisfied with our educational system until it provides the very best for our ablest children as well as for their equally worthy but less gifted contemporaries.

TV Preview

By Bruce Lowther

Excellent Viewing Lies Ahead This Week

From "The Little Foxes" to Sonja Henie's spectacular on ice, this week-before-Christmas-week has plenty of good TV shows—but very few of them are about Christmas itself.

Take for example CBC Folio on Wednesday night (channels 2 and 6, 10 p.m.). The National Ballet of Canada company will dance Tschaikovsky's "Swan Lake" possibly the best show of the next week, certainly the feature from CBC.

Taking the others from the top, Greer Garson becomes villainous in the Bankhead-Bette Davis role in "The Little Foxes" (channel 4, 7.30 tonight.)

KOMO-TV's Color Fair (channel 4, 10.30 Monday) presents the first "live" play in color in the Pacific Northwest—"A Child Is Born." Cast is from the drama department of Seattle University and music is by a student at the university. The story is by Stephen Vincent Benet.

* * *

Gracie Fields will repeat the role that won her a "best actress" award in "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" on U.S. Steel Hour (channels 11 and 12, 7 p.m. Wednesday), with Biff McGuire in the Jackie Cooper role.

Take your pick on Thursday — Nannette Fabray goes dramatic, with Lew Ayres, in "The Family Noboby Wanted" on Playhouse 90 (channel 11, 9.30) and the Christmas Lux Video show re-unites Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy (channel 4, 10 p.m.)

Miss Henie's "Holiday on Ice" (channel 4, 9 p.m. Saturday) features Hayes Jenkins, Ernie Kovacs and Julius La Rosa.

* * *

Out of a dozen or so worthwhile films, the best are "Seven Days to Noon" (channel 2, 11.15 tonight), a thriller about an atomic scientist loose with a bomb; "Dispatch From Reuters" (channel 12, 10.35 Tuesday); "Mikado," with Kenny Baker and Martyn Green (channel 5, 3 p.m. Monday); and if you like ham, "Viva Villa!" with Wallace Beery (channel 5, 10.30 Saturday).

Sportsmen will want to watch the United Press sports review of 1956 (channel 4, 7 p.m. Tuesday). And the first bowl game, the Aluminum Bowl between Montana State and St. Joseph's College, is on channels 11 and 12 at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The trend is to bigger, if not better shows, on television.

CBS plans a three-hour news and public affairs show two weeks from today to review 1956. Faces will include those of Ed Murrow, Charles Collingwood and Will Rogers, Jr.

A CARD OF THANKS

To all those good people, tradesmen, suppliers and their management . . . I wish to extend sincere congratulations on the fine work they have done in assisting me over the months in the construction and layout of Norman's Restaurant. This fine establishment is the ultimate result of their labors and engineering.

Norman's Restaurant, located at 769 Fort St. (between Lillian West and Clearview Bakeries) is now open for business, serving breakfast, luncheon, dinners and afternoon teas. The Autumn Room (located upstairs) which was specifically designed for private parties, has a seating capacity of about 30, containing an atmosphere of quiet so acceptable to such occasions.

Lack of space makes it impossible to describe Norman's in detail. I can only say to come and see for yourself one of Vancouver Island's finer eating establishments.

Yours sincerely,
Norman

"Rather bad breaks," South complained at the conclusion of this hand. "I guess I took too many finesses, though."

"You didn't take enough," North replied.

This was what happened. Wests opening lead of the four of spades was won with dummy's jack. The jack of diamonds finesse lost to West's king and, with a most uncomfortable lead to be made, West selected the queen of hearts. South won with the ace and finessed the nine. East made a fine play, holding up the jack in spite of leaving it unguarded. Scenting plenty of overtricks, South continued hearts, finessing the ten. East's jack won and a spade was returned.

South might still have made his contract if the diamond ten had fallen, but East had that card well guarded. Declarer made only two spades, two hearts, three diamonds and one club trick to go down one.

South had nine tricks home when East passed the nine of hearts if he abandoned the heart suit and set up the diamonds. But it was not the finesse in hearts that ruined declarer; it was his failure to take a second finesse in diamonds.

The West hand was the non-dangerous one; a club shift from East was a serious menace, since it was likely to give the defenders two club tricks. Instead of winning the queen of hearts with his own ace, South should take dummy's king and finesse another diamond. If the nine held (as it would have) South would get four diamond tricks. If it lost to West, no return would be dangerous and any return but a diamond would help declarer build up a ninth trick.

WINNING POINTS

Never play for a break when you can afford to lose a finesse to the nondanger hand.

The Car Corner

Mercedes Leads Them All

By J. T. JONES

Next time you see a Mercedes 300 SL go by (which you probably never will) give a thought to the vast debt the automobile world owes this magnificent car and its ancestors.

One of the [illegible] engineering boards sometime around 1950.

[illegible]

Outstanding in the engineering department was the development of [illegible] Mercedes [illegible] to dangerous, let [illegible] we have [illegible] I've had a fairly [illegible] of these and it's a [illegible] and interesting device.

But is the best Mercedes [illegible] And if it is there best is the best.

* * *

For both chassis and engines Mercedes [illegible] and a free-wheeling gearbox.

Independent rear suspension is a sore point for Mercedes but [illegible] recently underwent major development. The latest type called a swing axle [illegible] to dangerous, but [illegible] Mercedes [illegible] I've had a fairly [illegible] of these and it's a [illegible] and interesting device.

But is the best Mercedes [illegible] And if it is there best is the best.

* * *

For both chassis and engines Mercedes [illegible] and a free-wheeling gearbox.

Nearly every manufacturer eventually adopted this system and probably 90 per cent of the cars now running on the world's highways have their front wheels suspended by upper and lower wishbones with coil spring as laid out on Daimler Benz drawing boards sometime around 1950.

These engineers [illegible] suspension [illegible] closed firmly by [illegible] instead of springs and made them work when other experts said it was impossible.

Partly as the strength of these [illegible] Mercedes leaded grand prix cars in [illegible] that were so fast [illegible] the opposition could [illegible] a good race, let alone beat them.

The pattern was the same in all [illegible] Juan Fangio [illegible] Mercedes [illegible] frequently lapping the entire [illegible]

[illegible] Mercedes [illegible] Mercedes [illegible] sour one way or another, but that was an historic occasion.

* * *

[illegible]

Yet this red-hot racing engine can tick along smoothly at 15 miles an hour in top gear. Credit here goes to fuel injection, first in the world on a production car.

[illegible]

Stirling Moss, Mercedes' No. 2 driver in 1955, once said that if he had an idea to improve his car the Mercedes engineers had one of two answers. "We tried it in 1927 and it didn't work" or "We'll have it for you tomorrow morning."

[illegible]

Even at roughly $6,000 the 300 SL is a fantastically good buy in its class, one of the world's few really great cars.

The leadership of Mercedes designers has a few sidelights worth noting. For a long time there was agreement as to whether wire wheels were better than the disc type, racing cars account their drawbacks of extra weight as well as their disputed advantages of better brake cooling.

But when Mercedes' latest grand prix cars appeared with wire wheels, the argument was as good as over.

* * *

The same with disc brakes. They looked like the answer to a racer's prayer and Jaguar [illegible] Mercedes [illegible] brakes [illegible] a single block of [illegible]

Fill Gaps with Cabinets

[illegible]

If the space is from eight to 10 inches wide, a handy roll-away cabinet may be made and the handyman can do it himself.

[illegible]

The sides, bottom and shelves should be screwed together using simple butt joints. The dowels shown at D are recessed into holes drilled in front and back before the cabinet is assembled. They confine stored material to the shelves. The shelves are nailed to cleats as shown at H.

[illegible]

The numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 correspond to the same numbers in picture X. Metal trim can be attached to the edges of the cap. If the cabinet will not stay in place because of a sloping floor, attach a catch to the front end of the cap. The cabinet can be enameled inside and out in contrasting colors.

Overtime Brawl as Cougars Tie, 2-2; Royals Nip Canucks in Last Seconds

Victoria Cougars, as hard to beat as any team in the Western Hockey League although they haven't been able to get into a contending position, last night battled the Americans to a 2-2 overtime tie at Seattle. It was the seventh overtime game of the season for the Cougars, who have yet to win in extra time. They have split the points four times, lost three times. Five other games have been lost by the odd goal.

However, the point was strong enough to move them ahead of Vancouver Canucks, who saw a five-game unbeaten streak come to an end at New Westminster when the Royals scored with only 14 seconds left to gain a 3-2 win.

[illegible]

However, Gordie Haworth replied from another scramble at 2:46 and Larry Leach caromed a shot off a goal post at 17:15 for his second goal of the season.

Cougars had the lead [illegible] ex-Bruin Alex Delvecchio broke a lengthy scoring drought midway through the second period of a play with Ed Litzenberger, another former Cougar.

Referee Ross Vaillerie handed out more than enough penalties in regular time, but tempers frayed as players tired in the extra time and there was a wild melee involving practically everyone at both clubs.

It started when Kinasewich came to the defence of his goalie with fists flying after Cougar coach Colin Kilburn had skated into Emile Francis.

Doug Anderson moved in to help his teammate and Bill Dineen got sucked off against Fred Creighton of the Americans.

When peace was finally restored Anderson had a minor penalty, Dineen and Kinasewich had misconduct penalties and Creighton a major penalty.

CANUCKS OUTPLAYED

Canucks were outplayed both last night but fine goaling by Fred Mikulan kept them in the game until Max McNab got the decision with [illegible] time enough left for a faceoff and a quick goal.

Canucks opened the scoring early but Royals came back with goals 26 seconds apart in the second period to take the lead.

Canucks had only four shots on Bertin [illegible] in the first [illegible] of the third period. On the fifth Wally Wong scored to tie it up. The game ended at 19:18 and overtime appeared [illegible] but McNab and his line mates got together for a goal from the faceoff and McNab got the game-winner [illegible] as he made an mistake [illegible] puck passed in close at 19:47.

Canyens Press for Lead By Beating Bruins, 6-4

Montreal Canadiens are back in the form which saw them breeze to the National Hockey League championship last season and it doesn't look as if it will be long before the Stanley Cup champions are heading the field.

Canadiens flashed [illegible] time scoring punch for the second successive game when they [illegible] sometimes ragged [illegible] game.

finally caught up with Boston Bruins at Montreal last night.

Bruins had won four and tied one of five previous games with Canadiens but last night they were trailing by 6-1 before a late rally made the score a more respectable 6-4.

ONE POINT BEHIND

Having won seven and tied two of their last 10 games, Canadiens are now only one point behind the second place Detroit Red Wings who are a point behind the leading Bruins.

Wings picked up ground last night by handing the hapless Chicago Black Hawks a 5-1 defeat at Detroit.

In last night's other game Toronto Maple Leafs pulled into a fourth place tie with New York Rangers by handing the Bleeksmen a 4-1 setback.

Jean Beliveau and Bert Olmstead each scored a goal and two assists while Maurice Richard had a goal and one assist to lead the high-powered Montreal attack which got under way only 12 seconds after the first faceoff.

Wings, who haven't lost in 15 games on home ice this season, had little trouble with the Hawks, winless in 11 game since Nov. 3.

Alex Delvecchio started them off with his first goal of the season and Gordie Howe had scored twice and Johnny Bucyk once before Hank Ciesla ended Glen Hall's shutout bid early in the third period.

Detroit Star Second In All-Time Scoring

Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings scored twice last night to become the second highest goal-scorer in the history of the National Hockey League.

Howe's goals were the 329th and 330th of his 11-season NHL career and put him ahead of Nels Stewart who led with 324 until Maurice Richard passed him several seasons back.

Richard scored the 189th of his career last night and although the 28-year-old Howe is seven years younger than The Rocket, he'll have to stay good for some seasons yet to make up the difference.

10 POINTS BEHIND

Howe has the high of 17 goals for the season but still trails Jean Beliveau by 10 points.

Defending scoring champion Beliveau now has 43 points from 29 games and is ahead of the pace set by Howe when the Detroit winger set the NHL record of 95 points in the 1952-53 season.

At his pace for 70 games Beliveau will wind up with 104 points for 70 games.

The Sneem Ullman-Ted Lindsay-Howe line is the highest scoring combination in the league with 75 goals and 58 assists for 91 points in 28 games.

Next in goals scored is the Henri Richard-Dickie Moore-Maurice Richard unit with 74 goals but only 37 assists for points, the second best line is the Beliveau-Bert Olmstead-Bonin-Boom-Boom Geoffrion trio with 42 goals and 54 assists for 96 points.

NANAIMO—More break-ins were discovered in the Nanaimo area Friday. RCMP have been kept busy recently with a number of burglaries in business premises.

Thieves broke into the Milnway Store at Cedar and stole a few packages of cigarets. Then they attempted to enter the A and B Store at Cedar but failed.

Another burglary was reported on Commercial Street in Nanaimo where a folder had been used to enter Dunkin's Ltd. The intruders had got into the office but failed to get from here in the store, which held valuable photographic equipment and clothing.

Canadians Achieve New Elegance

Fashion Heights Scaled

CANADIAN couturiers are making an increasingly important contribution to the world of fashion.

There is a close relationship between them and the Canadian primary textile industry. Many of the Canadian fashion shows, for example, feature "Made in Canada" textiles exclusively. And they are lovely.

Marie France, of Montreal, works on a ballerina-length gown of shimmering Canadian nylon. She is one of the leaders in the Association of Canadian Couturiers. (National Film Board of Canada Photos)

UN CAN'T KEEP PEACE

By SIR ROBERT HOLLAND

AS a result of the dramatic happenings in the Middle East, many people must be wondering whether the forcible maintenance of peace in the world ought to be a function of the United Nations.

SIR ROBERT HOLLAND sees unbridged gulf between East and West

* * *

(One of the world's foremost authorities on the affairs of the Middle East, Sir Robert Erskine Holland, in this article discusses forcible maintenance of peace as a function of the United Nations. Because this eminent scholar, diplomat and jurist, living in retirement here, has a knowledge of foreign affairs possessed by few men, his observations and opinions carry great weight. And because of the chaotic conditions in the Middle East and the United Nations problems of the moment, his contribution is considered most timely.)

* * *

War Will Ruin Even the Victor

First, until all coherent individual states possess, and have learned to operate successfully, systems of government expressing the will of the people and assuring to them human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Second, until the condition of peoples on the margin of existence is materially improved by concerted measures of the kind planned for the uplift of millions in Southeast Asia and other countries;

And third until the people of the major states at least, are imbued with a common moral purpose and can feel confident that the same purpose will infallibly govern decisions of those to whom the reins of the central organization, whatever it may then be, are entrusted.

Graves of the Commonwealth Cemetery near Yokohama are the lodger token of the sacrifice of a small part of it of United Nations in the cause of uneasy peace. But the example of Korea where aggression was met with arms has not been sufficient to discourage violence elsewhere in the world, particularly the Middle East.

Mrs. Ada Barner looked, with more than a hint of moisture in her eyes, at a happy, colorful tangle of little children, balloons and paper hats, and a wrapping-strewn Government House ballroom floor.

[illegible]

"We just can't thank them enough," said the matron of the Protestant Orphanage, as Mrs. Ross knelt on the floor to help three-year-old Tommy get his tractor-derrick started.

[illegible]

"She's a wonderful woman. Look at the youngsters so well treated and happy and so well behaved. She asked every one of them what they wanted and then gave the list to my wife, who bought the presents."

Then it was back to the ballroom and the visit of Santa (naval petty officer Roy Reeves). Balloons showered down on the youngsters from the balcony, and bags of nuts and candy were given them as they left.

[illegible]

"Can you manage?" asked His Honor, helping a youngster wrestle with a box bigger than the child as the children made ready to leave—and as time neared for Mr. Ross to leave for Vancouver and a presentation to Canada's Olympic rowers.

Hurried Thieves Get Safe, $450

Thieves, who were in a hurry and didn't worry about noise, stole a 375-pound safe containing $450 early yesterday from Gorge Auto Sales, corner of Gorge and Wascana.

Locks on the door had been obviously "forced in a hurry—all brute force and no worry about noise" and the door was splintered, police said. Stolen was $400 in cash and $50 in silver, as well as other articles.

Eaton's department store, although disagreeing in principle with the practice, has decided to go along with other stores here on the closing three nights during the Christmas rush.

It was agreed at a special meeting last month of the Chamber of Commerce retail group that stores would stay open until 9 p.m. next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and until 5.30 p.m. on Wednesday.

At the meeting were representatives from Eaton's, Hudson's Bay, Cox, Woodwards, Kent's, Spencer's stores, Montague Bridgman and the 900 Block Yates Street Association.

An Eaton's official said yesterday the store had originally decided to staying open until 9 p.m. Saturday because "we are not in favor of working our staff long hours."

Hunger Needs Holiday

Candy and Christmas food are needed for the Christmas surplus food stall to be held Saturday.

The stall is open once a month throughout the year for needy families and endeavors to give each family enough food to help out for one week.

Donations to buy turkey or canned chicken and special Christmas extras are needed as well as the usual donations of vegetables, fruit and other foods.

Anyone wishing to make a donation should call Mrs. A. C. Harper, manager of the stall, at 410 Vincent Avenue, EB8-4.

Relief Main Reaction To Dior's London Show

LONDON (CP) — There were signs of relief in the London fashion world when Christian Dior's spring collection was unveiled. Hemlines weren't as low as some had feared.

Three months ago fashion dictator Dior advocated demi-longeur skirts — ankle-length. There were [illegible] hundreds. Then came the relief. The models included coats in three ankle-length growths and they were reserved for evening wear.

Nevertheless Dior still appears to be pushing the idea of lengthening all skirts next spring. His representation hemline today is 14 to 15 inches from the ground.

TOPICAL NOTE

The mass on Carson Daly's Sketch, strikes a topical note. Says Dior: Dior has again done the longer skirts because of the British petrol crisis.

When he launched the ankle length skirt last summer he wanted women to look more lady-like and help bring back the feeling of a more leisurely age. He decided against it for the time being, says the Sketch because the idea dawned on him [illegible] a petrol shortage with queuing for buses and what are virtually wartime conditions.

However, Dior's latest collection is essentially feminine. Lines are curved and rounded. Shoulder lines are set low.

Dior says orchant flame will be the foremost spring color, with rose, lilac, bright navy and "whisky" tones as runners-up.

There is a silver grey, two tones called Canada, the sea son given for the name, which has a boat neckline dress and button up jacket.

One ankle length dinner gown is in emerald green satin. The dress dips at the back of the ankles but is raised slightly in front. It has a petal-shaped bodice with straps and a narrow [illegible].

Reminiscent of Victorian garden parties is one in clear white lace. It has an off-shoulder scalloped neckline and a deep red rose pinned at the waist.

Dior's coats still bear the magnet line, with sleeves set from a low shoulder line puffing into fullness and caught into a tight cuff.

Suits retain the "Dutch" style skirts with unpressed front pleats and jackets are really cropped short. There is a choice of waistlines. They are either raised, fitted or sometimes natural with a belt.

Eggs in Sauce

For extra richness in flavor and color and smooth texture add egg yolk or whole egg to the cream sauce used for chicken or turkey a la king, creamed eggs or seafood Newburge.

Use egg yolks equal one whole egg in thickening quality or 1 tablespoon of flour. Beat egg yolks or whole egg slightly. Add a little hot cream sauce. Blend and stir back into remaining sauce and cook over low heat for a minute. Do not allow sauce to boil.

Vary the flavoring of cream and egg sauce with small amounts of herbs or spices such as celery seed, celery, [illegible] basil, rosemary or with seafood [illegible] or a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Herbs and spices should be added with the lemon. Subtle flavoring is the sign of the accomplished cook. Like perfume on a lady, it should be suggested rather than announced.

Cost of the proposed Shakespearean festival theatre at Stratford, Ont., will be met by a national fund drive, Fund chairman on Vancouver Is. and to whom donations may be sent is J. Stuart Keate, the vice-president of Victoria Press.

The foundation stone of the $1,500,000 theatre will be put in place by Governor-General Vincent Massey, Jan. 28.

If you are planning a vacation in some sun-drenched climate you will probably be interested in this smart sheath which was designed with a seaboard holiday in mind.

It has a Belgian linen dress in pale honey with a box pleat in back. Bone buttons form the front, using a self belt nips the natural waistline and the bodice is slightly bloused in back. Short sleeves and a white chiffon scarf are other details.

Quest for the Atom

By Arthur Holly Compton

'Oddly, Stalin Wasn't Curious About the Bomb'

Plaque commemorating the first self-sustained nuclear chain reaction at Chicago on Dec. [illegible]

The case against use of the bomb on the Japanese theatre was presented first [illegible] by Leo Szilard, the Atomic scientist [illegible]

[illegible] that the use of the bomb be blocked. He circulated petitions at Chicago and urged others to circulate similar petitions at Los Alamos and Oak Ridge.

This stimulated counter petitions requesting that the bombs be used to bring the war to a close.

There were few who sensed as clearly as did Szilard the shock that would be felt throughout the world if the atomic bomb destroyed large numbers of Japanese lives. This he thought of as an international crime.

He had been willing to approve and even [illegible] the use of the bomb against the Germans. In this case, it would be at most one of the many destructive acts for which we would be at the Nazis should win.

He [illegible] himself that the case [illegible] the Japanese.

[illegible] of the petition circulated to [illegible] caused [illegible] reaction. [illegible] opponent was [illegible]

[illegible] present if war it would be difficult to resist the temptation of putting them [illegible]

This a nation which sets the precedent of using these newly [illegible] [illegible] to an era of devastation on [illegible] scale."

In this form of his petition Szilard found almost no support. Accordingly he [illegible] his petition so as to approve of the use of the atomic weapons after giving [illegible] warning and opportunity for surrender under known conditions.

As he turned the revised petition over for delivery to Washington [illegible] called that it was signed by 67 [illegible] residing in Chicago.

The reaction to this petition among members of the project was vigorous. One counter petition read in part:

"Are not the men of the fighting forces a part of the nation? Are not they, who are risking their lives for the nation entitled to the weapons which have been designed?

"In short, are we to [illegible] American blood when we have available a means to speedily [illegible] Save even a handful of American [illegible] by not using these weapons [illegible]

Others felt just as [illegible]

Since it was difficult [illegible] to get a balanced view of [illegible] were thinking, General Groves suggested that I supervise an opinion poll among those who knew what was going on.

We asked and received replies from 150 members of the Metallurgical Laboratory at Chicago.

* * *

Because [illegible] representatives of the United States, Great Britain, and Russia were assembling at Potsdam. At the time of the great test explosion at Alamogordo on July 16 Truman and his party were on an inspection tour in Berlin.

As Truman tells me the story of the eventful day that the full account came into his hands, he immediately sent word to Winston Churchill. He then called a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It was at this meeting that [illegible] gave his formal assent to the use of the bomb against Japan, of which time [illegible]

[illegible] Truman [illegible]

Later the same day, according to [illegible] account, he [illegible] of the [illegible] of bombs we [illegible] powerful that it seemed best to be [illegible] Japanese. We postponed [illegible] forenoon.

Stalin congratulated him on his good fortune at having such a weapon appear at this opportune moment. To the surprise of Truman and Churchill, Stalin otherwise expressed no curiosity.

According to Churchill, [illegible]

Pacific Petroleum Expands Holdings

Some idea of the vast extent of the Pacific Petroleum wells in the Fort St. John and Southeast Fort St. John fields is given in the company's report on activities during the last six months.

In that period, following the start of the Westcoast Transmission pipeline, Pacific has had eight drills at work and the total daily flow of the two fields is now computed at 85,000,000 cubic feet a day, more than double the amount of gas Westcoast has undertaken to deliver daily at the U.S. border.

Unique UN Uniform

Glittering Burns Dressed by Dior!

ABU SUWIER, Egypt (NANA)—A new military uniform, the only one of its kind in the world, has made its debut here.

Canada's Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, commanding the United Nations Emergency Force, is positively glittering in his new United Nations uniform. Of bus driver blue, the jacket has light blue and gold lapels embossed with the U N insignia, the peaked cap has a double row of gold braid.

Asked who had designed this creation, the general grinned and replied:

"Christian Dior, of course."

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

People seem to be affected in strange ways by television . . . much more so than they ever were by radio or the movies.

For example, a newspaper television writer may get a telephone call in the early morning or in the late night blasting him for making unkind remarks about a TV show.

He may be blamed because channel 6 is knocking out the fights on channel 5, or because somebody didn't like the TV cartoon of the day, or because of a mistake in the program listings.

On the other hand, he can get the most wonderful telephone calls from people who agree with his opinions or just like the column.

The point of all this and it's prompted by a letter from a man who didn't want to "offend too much," is that comment on comment carried here is welcome. Only request is . please don't telephone while the writer is sleeping and his wife is either cooking a meal or changing the baby.

"Since we have no sponsor for 'Medic' maybe our Blue Cross will cover the costs."

The man who didn't want to offend (and he didn't) disagreed with the opinion that Victor Borge was very funny and that 60 or 90-minute shows are better than half hour dramas.

* * *

Mark Goodson and Bill Todman, who have made themselves and CBS rich with quiz-show ideas, have stacked the lineup of their latest with considerable talent.

Panelists on Nothing But the Truth, debuting at 9 p.m. Tuesday, are newscaster John Cameron Swayze, singer Polly Bergen, actress Hildy Parkes and comic Dick Van Dyke. They must guess which of three people is telling the truth, and if they guess wrong the truth-teller gets $3,000.

* * *

TViewing highlights today are few.

Jack Benny and Dennis Day take off Mikado . Greer Garson and Franchot Tone star in "Little Foxes."

All at the same time there's a Dinah Shore Chevy show, Helen Hayes on Omnibus and Ronald Coleman on GE Theatre. Looks as though "Little Foxes" will be the best of the day.

Today's Best

3:00 "How Canadian Should We Get?" is the topic on Citizens Forum, with Pierre Berton as chairman (channels 2 and 6).

4:00 Air Power shows the Luftwaffe (channel 2).

4:00 Ray Bolger talks to and dances with Vincent Price and Stubby Kaye (channel 4).

6:00 Air Power shows how the RAF followed up the Battle of Britain (channel 11).

7:00 Jack Benny and Dennis Day (channels 11 and 12).

7:30 "Little Foxes" Hallmark Hall of Fame show with Franchot Tone, Greer Garson and Eileen Heckart (channel 4).

8:00 Ed Sullivan hosts Sophie Tucker (channel 2); Risë Stevens, Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy (channel 11).

9:00 Dinah Shore has as guests Dizzy Dean, Donald O'Connor, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans (channel 4).

9:00 Helen Hayes is the star of Omnibus (channel 5).

9:00 Ronald Coleman guests in "Chess Game" (channel 11).

Sport Specials

1:30 Green Bay at Los Angeles, pro football (channels 11 and 12).

10:30 Bowling (channel 4). Man Alive! (channel 11).

Movie Lineup

12:30 "Jesse James at Bay," channel 11. Roy Rogers.

2:00 "Wagon Tracks West," channel 4. Gabby Hayes, Wild Bill Elliott.

2:00 "They Who Dare," channel 5. Dirk Bogarde.

3:00—"Flying Wild," channel 13. East Side Kids.

5:00—"The Great Mr. Nobody," channel 12. Eddie Albert.

8:00 Western, channel 6.

10:30 "Man in the Dinghy," channel 13. Michael Wilding.

10:35 "Kiss in the Dark," channel 12. David Niven, Jane Wyman, Broderick Crawford. Recommended if you've seen "Seven Days to Noon."

11:00 "Devil Doll," channel 5. Lionel Barrymore (1936).

11:15 "Seven Days to Noon," channel 2. Barry Jones. Highly recommended.

11:15 "Sins of Jezebel," channel 11. Paulette Goddard.

Rita Del Mar's Daily Astrology

SUNDAY, DEC. 16

Today's quotation: "We can do more good by being good than in any other way."—Rowland Hill.

Sunday for everyone: Relax and have fun today. Enjoy some extra conviviality, good fellowship. See someone who cannot get around as easily as you do. Give and receive service; attend to finances and wardrobe. Don't be hasty or impulsive, however.

Look for Your Birthdate and Birthsign Below

March 21 to April 19 (Aries)—Contact nearby persons, kin, chums. Hold opinions, program open to revision.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus)—Find pleasure in the company of dear ones in a congenial way; you may fall heir to some benefit.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini)—Be the key figure in your circle; sparkplug the program for fun and recreation.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer)—Try to achieve serenity and peace of mind by wholesome living and a sensible routine. Find privacy.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo)—Get into a gregarious mood; seek an introduction to stimulating, friendly people.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo)—Preserve your good standing with parents and persons you esteem. Be dependable, moderate.

Sept 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra)—Seek intellectual stimulus. Spend time with in-laws, sociable folk; speak your mind.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio)—Allot expenses equally if costs strain your bankroll. Let companions, colleagues pay their way.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)—Let others set the pace, co-operate with them for best results. Promote partnership or public interests.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn)—Find enjoyment or benefit via co-employees, aunts, uncles, subordinates. Make yourself useful.

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius)—Make this a fun-filled, happy day; enjoy your free time thoroughly; indulge cherished wishes.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces)—Spend your day happily with the family. Contact parents, dear ones; pamper older folk a bit.

Planning ahead—Good for entertaining, sociability, etc.: Dec. 19, 20, 21, 23, afternoon of 24.

MONDAY, DEC. 17

Today's quotation: "There can be no excess to love, none to knowledge, none to beauty, when these attributes are considered in the purest sense."—Emerson.

Monday for everyone: Today highlights relationships in connection with the public, partnerships, associates. It requires care and tact. Adjust to necessary changes; but don't force issues. Be conscientious about tasks; maintain harmony.

Look for Your Birthdate and Birthsign Below

March 21 to April 19 (Aries)—Recheck details; avoid mistakes; use care en route; be open-minded. Strengthen ties.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus)—The accent is on your bankroll and monetary ties with others; protect your interests.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini)—Make necessary adjustments in associations or environment; emphasize teamwork.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer)—Your own problems and those of others are stressed today; seek to find their solutions.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo)—Your aspirations come to the fore. Resolve disagreements; maintain bonds of friendship, love.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo)—Prestige and vocation claim top interest today; protect your reputation, status, stability.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra)—Your opinions are pitted against those of others; be conciliatory, flexible, consistent.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio)—Private finances and monetary ties with others may take prominence today. Bolster insecure items.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)—Similarities and differences in outlook may be disclosed today; meet others halfway. Maintain accord.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn)—Labor, service may be a source of friction; be cheerful, conscientious. Protect health.

Jan 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius)—Take no chances. Keep things on an even keel concerning intimates, loved ones. Double-check decisions, routes.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces)—Mend whatever flaws are revealed in the domestic-parental commercial picture.

Planning ahead—Good for entertaining, sociability, etc.: Dec. 19, 20, 21, 23, afternoon of 24, 29, 30.

DISTINCTIVE RESIDENCE
Two Bathrooms and Powder Room
For the man who has professional or social obligations which should be met with dignity and an aura of good living, this residence, situated in the heart of the city's most exclusive area, would be difficult, if not impossible, to surpass. Factually there are four bedrooms, two bathrooms, living room, dining room, den, breakfast room, cabinet kitchen, oil hot-water heat. Beautiful grounds — and back with provision for a tennis court, in complete seclusion. There are many houses which might give the same facts. There are not many like this. Built a few years before the last war, it has always been carefully maintained by those who have enjoyed the privilege of living within its walls. It is now being offered with regret by its

Sixers' Rally Highlights Active Week

By GEORGE A. BARR
District Commissioner
Victoria District

A highlight of Scout activities this week was the Sixers' powwow at district headquarters under District Cubmaster Miss P. Sheffield.

Assistants were Mrs. J. Shemilt and Miss R. Oliver.

Mr. E. T. Naish, assistant district commissioner for Cubs, was invited to talk to the Sixers on duties at pack meetings. Some 10 leaders attended as well as 26 Cubs.

* * *

Oaklands Group Committee calls attention to the fact that the troop is now without a leader. The committee has carried on meetings but is looking for a man who can assume training duties.

Any person interested near St. Alban's Church on Ryan Street should call Mr. J. W. Stephen, 1900 Forrester, at 3-2887.

* * *

Willingness to live by the Scout promise is the only requirement for a Scout. He makes the following promise: "On my honor, I promise that I will do my best to do my duty to God, and the Queen, to help other people at all times and to obey the Scout law."

Belmont Troop has taken the first part of this promise to heart. The following boys received their religion and life award: David Day, Allan Day, Gerald Pash, Kenneth Joges, Jimmy Ross, Douglas Baxter, Harry Silvester and Jimmie Clarke.

* * *

St. Columba Pack in Strawberry Val announces the following Cubs promoted to Sixers and Seconds:

Sixers — Jimmy Nightingale, Garry Maicham and Ernie Seedhouse.

Seconds — John Humphries, Bruce Hayward and Jerry Mosop.

Last meeting of the Pack before Christmas holidays will be on Tuesday with a party, and exchanging of presents.

The group will undertake a drive to raise funds in January for a new Pack flag. It is presently trying to form a ladies' auxiliary.

* * *

Brentwood Cubs enjoyed a swim at Crystal Garden on Friday evening after which they met at district headquarters for a party.

* * *

The Green Plume Court of Honor had its biggest attendance in months as Scouters considered material derived from the patrol leaders' conference.

District Scoutmaster C. Pike was re-elected chairman for 1957.

* * *

The executive committee commended the A.D.C. for Rovers, Mr. R. E. Warner, for the efficient way in which Rovers were put on emergency stand-by basis during the recent flood. Within 30 minutes all crews were alerted, ready and willing to serve.

* * *

A meeting of the training team will be held on Tuesday to plan a Scoutmasters' preliminary training course. Notices will be sent out to leaders.

* * *

Rover leaders and assistants are asked to confirm attendance at Part II Rover Wood Badge Course near Haney. Provincial headquarters will bring a top-training leader from Ontario to head up the course if sufficient interest is shown.

Badges issued during the past week.

Tenderpad—Neil Allen, Edward Thomson, John Davies, Ken Geary, Donald McKay, Trevor Thomas, Gerald Wardell, Don Woodward.

Benzedrine Boom

Truckers, Teen-Agers Face Growing Peril

LOS ANGELES (NANA)—Cross-country truck drivers and thrill-seeking teen-agers today constitute a dangerously expanding market for illegal trafficking in benzedrine, dexedrine and other "hop-up" pills.

The "Bennies" aid the drivers of the "big rigs" to stay on the highways of the vast Southwest up to 40 hours at a stretch without sleep, and sometimes without judgment, leading to fatal accidents.

The same pills spark the youngsters to riotous parties and lead them through the first step in the pattern leading eventually to heorin addiction.

And narcotics peddlers, fearing the stiffened penalties for dealing in heorin, are building a new multi-million-dollar trade in a field where a misdemeanor is the worst charge that can be brought for providing the pills to a high school girl, while giving the same drug to a horse could result in a felony charge and prison.

These are the preliminary findings of a California study being conducted by the assembly committee on public health, headed by chairman Rex M. Cunningham.

TWO DANGERS

The gravest immediate danger is posed by the pill-using truckers, and the long-run danger is the ultimate fate of the youngsters who start the trail that continues through marijuana to heroin, the investigators were told.

Capt. Tom Thomas of the Imperial County sheriff's office, where the federal highways unroll their concrete ribbons for seemingly endless miles across the Great American Desert, estimated that up to 10 fatal accidents there have been traced to dope-using truck drivers.

He described an interview with a trucker after a tragic fatal crash:

"The driver said he came over the crest of a hill and saw on the road what he thought was an empty apple box. He said he tried to straddle the box with his front wheels, so as to miss it.

"But what he thought was an empty box was a house trailer being pulled by the car in front of it . . ."

Capt. Thomas recalled, in describing the unpredictable effects of improper use of "stay-awake" pills, a truck driver who drove for 50 miles after an accident.

"When he finally was stopped," Thomas said, "he didn't know anything had happened, even though his windshield was broken, and he and the front seat of his cab were covered with sand and gravel thrown there by the accident."

Capt. Kenneth L. Irving, chief of the Los Angeles County sheriff's narcotics detail, citing records of a shocking increase in the use of the "hop-up pills" by juveniles, said interviews with the teen-agers indicated they obtained from them a sense of "maturity." One girl said, "We act like we're 40!"

From many years' experience in his specialized field of police work, Capt. Irving detailed the dangers:

"A recent study showed that 96 per cent of heroin users first used marijuana. We believe the same relationship exists between users of marijuana and the use of 'bennies' and sleeping pills."

He said the peddler who "pushes 'bennies' operates in the same manner and with as much cunning as a heroin pusher, and is as difficult to catch."

A LOVELIER YOU

SHORTCUT TO HOUSEWORK. Wipe up spills the moment they occur! Sounds simple but in this rushed season or any other, it is one of the shortcuts to housework. If not cleaned up at once, drips stick to and stain surfaces. Removal then takes twice the effort and time.

For quick wipes, a damp sponge is the best tool. The newest type has a long, sturdy plastic handle and a replaceable, non-hardening sponge. And it is a handy combination—allows for insertion of clean sponges at will and cuts stoops almost to nil!

BEAUTY OF HOUSEWORK

ATTENTION HOMEMAKERS! If housework saps your energies, looks and nerves, send for my booklet, Beauty of Housework. It explains how to keep home and self sparkling with time to spare. Also included are an effort-saving work plan, shortcuts in housekeeping, and advice on how to give yourself a beauty treatment while engaged in your duties. For your copy, write me in care of your newspaper, enclosing 20 cents in coin and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Parliament Of Boys Sits Dec. 27

The province's youngest politicians will occupy the B.C. legislature from Dec. 27 to 30. Ages range from 16 to 21.

They are members of the Older Boys' Parliament, sponsored by the Inter-Church Parliamentary committee of Vancouver.

Normal state ceremony of opening the legislature will be copied, there will be a "speech from the Throne" and government "bills" will be debated.

W. A. Neen has been chosen "premier" for the short-lived session and Douglas Norman will be "leader of the opposition."

The junior politicians will be entertained at Government House by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and Mrs. Ross between sessions.

PTA to Hold Christmas Party

A square-dancing exhibition, bingo, carol singing and the exchanging of Christmas gifts will highlight the meeting of MacKenzie Avenue School PTA, Wednesday.

A successful bazaar held last month raised more than $500 for the association. Mrs. G. Girton was convener.

HOLLYWOOD - Victoria-born actor John Ireland testified at a debtor's hearing yesterday that he doesn't know where his next payment for his 1956 Cadillac is coming from but expects to earn $15,000 in the next three months.

Power Contract End Approved

Provincial cabinet Friday authorized the B.C. Power Commission to terminate its agreement for the supply of power to the B.C. Electric Company on Vancouver Island.

The contract will be terminated Oct. 1, 1959.

Under the present contract the publicly owned commission supplies the B.C. Electric with 37,000 kilowatts on southern Vancouver Island.

This will be reduced to 20,000 kilowatts on Oct. 1, 1958, and the remaining 20,000 kilowatts will be stopped a year later.

Main factor permitting the termination of the contract was the completion of the B.C. Electric's 132,000-volt undersea cable from the mainland, spokesmen for both utilities said yesterday.

They emphasized that the existing connection at Stratford on the Island between the B.C. Power Commission and the B.C. Electric's Island and mainland operations would be continued for the interchange of electricity whenever desirable and possible and as an emergency standby for both utilities.

No Lissome Blonde

Chunky Spinster Cheats by Mail

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A robust, middle-aged spinster who passed herself off—pictorially—as a young blonde, was convicted Friday of using the mails to cheat lonely hearts.

A federal court jury took less than 10 minutes to reach a verdict against Ann Gartman of Philadelphia, who, contrary to her "lonely hearts" come-on, is plump and stocky. By her own admission, quoted in court, she told male correspondents that she was 22, a beauty, and heiress to $25,000 at the age of 25.

Until Judge J. Cullen Ganey imposes sentence, she is free on $500 bail. Maximum penalty is a year in jail and a $5,000 fine on each three counts.

Postal officials said she signed a statement admitting that she flimflammed more than a dozen men of between $3,000 and $4,000.

Postal inspector Thomas J. Hillegas, quoting from Miss Gartman's statement, said she made up a form which described a young woman of great charm. When a reply came along, she mailed a picture of an appealing blonde. By invitation, her keyed-up admirers then sent her bus fare to their home towns. The next step, as related in court, was for Miss Gartman to get off a letter, supposedly written by someone else, saying that she had been forced to go to Arizona for her health.
